Truth will triumph and souls be saved only as God’s ambassador is true.

We believe it was Dean Swift who said: “The Lord shows His estimate of money by the men on whom He confers it.”

You can condemn a man’s ways and love the man. Hatred of sin must not carry with it hatred for the sinner. Discriminate here carefully, or you will fall far below the example of our Great Teacher.

John Howe uttered a sad truth when he said: “The very defense of truth itself may be accompanied with carnalities, strife, wrath, malice, envy.” The apostle exhorts us to lay aside “all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings.”

We have often been told very gravely of the warm heart hidden under an icy exterior. We were never deceived by this plausible saying. We rather think it marks a fallacy. We rather incline to believe that a heart of tenderness and sympathy and love will reflect itself in the face. The face is a tell-tale on the soul. That person whose face bespeaks no kindness need not be credited too readily with a very kindly heart. There is a story of a heart-shaped wedge of iron intended as a part of some new machinery which was stolen and carried away red hot from the furnace by those opposed to the invention and buried in the ground. Search was immediately made but a heavy snow had fallen and all trace of the hiding place was lost. But the hot iron warmed the earth above it and melted the snow, and when the morning came there was an odd little patch of ground which told its own story to observant eyes. A foundry man witnessing the digging out of the wedge said: “Did they really suppose they could hide that red hot heart under the snow and have it stay hid?”

No more can a heart red hot with real love and sympathy and kindliness of spirit lie hidden beneath an exterior of austerity and coldness. “Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.” With equal truth may it be said that out of the abundance of the heart the face and eyes speak.

Ubiquitous or Nothing

With the criminal lawyer fired with prosecuting zeal it is often said to be “neek or nothing;” the meaning being that the attorney is intent on conviction. So we may say concerning the Christian religion that it is ubiquitous or nothing—that is to say, that it is of universal adaptation, application and necessity, or else, it fits nowhere, at no time and applies to nobody. It is imperious, essential, regal or it is nothing. If it be not a necessity everywhere it is needed nowhere. If it appeals and applies not to every crevice and corner of human life, to its every day and every hour, then it fits not anywhere. If it has not the right both intrinsically and by our dire need, to control absolutely and undisputedly all the movements and methods and mutations of life’s aims and endeavors, it has not authority to touch life at its uttermost fringe. The Christ is absolute in His authority for dominion or he is an usurper, a pretender. But reason, revelation, civilization—this triple voice uttered unbrokenly adown the ages—have corroborated His claim and vindicates His right to rule. The universality and absolutism of His authority and rulership over the entirety of the individual life and of all the lives of the habitable world are irrevocably established forever.

The True Preparation

A complete literary, scientific, classical and theological education is a very great and needed equipment for every preacher of the gospel. We do not say essential, for it is possible for men to succeed and do God’s work fully and faithfully without this. We insist, however, that a call to preach is a call to get ready to preach in the most efficient and fruitful way, and the larger and more versatile the educational equipment, the better for the preacher. Illustrative of this point, is a case of the two wood choppers. Starting out to the woods one morning they both found that their axes were dull. One paused to spend a half hour in sharpening his ax. His friend ridiculed him for that loss of time and hurried on to the woods with a half hour advantage in time, but with a dull ax. At the close of the day’s work, the man with the sharp ax had much more results to show for the shorter time employed in labor.

We want to emphasize an entirely different element of equipment. The broadest, most complete and up to date intellectual and theological training will issue as fruitlessly as will stolid illiteracy and ignorance in the ministry without another kind of equipment—the presence and power of the Holy Spirit obtained by prevailing secret prayer. The cultured preacher, without this last mentioned equipment, will of course wield a broader influence socially, will attract and entertain larger multitudes than the illiterate preacher, but he would only be missing broader opportunities and prostituting more imperious talents and endowments than his neighbor. The sanctifying power of the Holy Ghost is an indispensable and primary qualification of the preacher for effective work. To be properly equipped he must “tarry at Jerusalem” for this Gift. No amount of culture or training or other equipment will substitute this great essential of his equipment.

The True Life

A more pernicious and misleading saying has never gained currency among men than that vicious declaration that “business is business.” There is utterly no “business” with well informed and right minded people to be conceived as divorced from religion. Who built the wall between the sacred and the secular? Whence came the material, and who authorized the construction of this dividing fence between the sacred and the secular? There exists no such line of demarcation with men who recognize and honor God, who revere and bow to Jesus Christ, who move upon a level higher than the plane of the carnal and bestial, and who live in a broad and intelligent recognition of the right of the God who made man and the world to rule them.

What can “business is business” possibly mean except that business has a right to be selfish, wicked, devilish—to ignore and dishonor God? It has no such right. We reply that religion is religion. Integrity is integrity. Honor is honor. Truth is truth. A religion which does not control at the counter with the benign principles just mentioned is a trade which disgraces the name of business as well as dishonors God. Any safe, any set of books, any counting room which cannot bear the inspection of Christ or the microscopic survey of the saintliest of His prophets is a safe, a set of books or a counting room disgraceful to the name of business, a useful agent of the devil and is doing business for hell. Any business on which God's blessing cannot be asked in sincerity had better be abandoned at once. Any business conducted in a way which would give offense to Christ were He personally present as a partner in the firm is a business dangerous alike to the present and the eternal welfare of those engaged in it.

To God's children all things are sacred. Business is a trust, time is a loan, money is but committed talents to be used and strictly accounted for. In short God's children are doing business for God and for eternity and there are no two departments in their business dividing the sacred from the secular. All with them is sacred because all is divine. All comes from God, all belongs to God, all is used for God. "For none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself." "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God." Such is the aim of entire sanctification. This is the life of holiness into which entire sanctification inducts us.

Prayer in Sermon-Making

Preaching and prayer have an indissoluble relation grounded in philosophy, reason and scripture. In fact no discourses based on texts of scripture from church pulpits by ordained clergymen, have any right under heaven to be called preaching unless there be two departments in their business dividing the sacred from the secular. All with them is sacred because all is divine. All comes from God, all belongs to God, all is used for God. "For none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself." "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God." Such is the aim of entire sanctification. This is the life of holiness into which entire sanctification inducts us.

Prayer, which prevails and brings down the power divine, will fertilize and fructify and render useful all these human expedients and educational helps and equipment, because such prayer recognizes the supremacy of God, our absolute need and dependence upon Him, and distinctly subordinates all else to Him.

A writer in the Christian Advocate in a letter addressed to a young minister, very tersely illustrates this specific point, when he says: "Now, I should have liked to hear the sermon that you prayed over and cried over and almost broke down and made a failure on. You may depend upon it, boy, that when God wrings His messages out of the fibre of your own heart, with a touch of blood and tears, they will be sure to reach the hearts of others."

Just here is the trouble. Too many sermons are not prayed over and cried over almost with the agony of despair until the poor preacher breaks down and oftentimes in the delivery of the message makes what he calls a failure. But messages thus wrung out of the heart of the preacher, with blood and tears and agony and faith, love and hope in them, will be sure to reach the hearts of the hearers. The very desperateness and need and lostness of these hearers so grip and grieve and grapple the heart of the preacher, that in the preparation of his sermon these sad and dire facts become all mixed up and transfused through his sermon and he comes to his pulpit with a heart wrenched and bleeding with love and pity for the crowd he has held up to God in secret so long and so faithfully and as he pours forth his message it is heart laying itself on hearts—soul pouring out its ineffable and omnipotent sympathy and love on other souls. Is it strange that such preaching bears fruit? Such preaching alone is done "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power," and after such preaching those influences are sure to have their faith stand "in the power of God." O, for a ministry in all the denominations thus equipped with the sanctifying power of the Holy Ghost! How this world would vibrate under the tread and power of such an evangelism. What a revival wave would be started! How Zion would rejoice! How souls would be born into the Kingdom! How the angels would rejoice and devils tremble!

An Unutterable Pity

When we contemplate the colossal opportunity of the great churches of the world and their shameful neglect of it, we are filled with the very consternation of pity. As we think of it it grows more and more appalling. What a magnificent, irresistible army these great churches would make and how the world would tremble under their omnipotent tread of divine power and authority if they bore loyally and fought consistently under the blood-stained banner of holiness as a second definite work of grace! Faithful to this evangel of the Spirit's sanctifying power, these hosts would be filled with evangelistic fire and quenchless missionary zeal. The beauty and charm of the individual life would give a seraphic influence which would lead and lure others into submission. Their sweet joy under suffering, their uncomplaining submission under life's inequalities and injustices would exert a potent charm convincing to the most worldly and thoughtless. Their unselfish devotion to the rescue of lost souls, so divine in its altruism, so Christ-like in its unselfishness, would captivate men and evoke the cry of wonder: "Behold, how these Christians love."

The absolute unworldliness and spiritual glow of such a sanctified army impervious and impenetrable to the shafts of the matchless and universal materialism of the age would prove a Gibraltar against which the mountain-waves of dollarism and deviltry would beat themselves but unwittingly. Strong in the strength which God supplies through Christ enthroned within the Holy Ghost through the blood this militant army of blood-washed and sanctified would march on conquering and to conquer, "as fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

Instead of such martial splendor and peerless prowess which should characterize the victorious sweep of this embattled host, behold the spectacle! A shameless struggle to maintain merely numerical entity. No advance; no inroads on the enemy; no storming of citadels and the capture of hundreds and thousands in single engagements. On the contrary, by temporizing and compromising, enlisting every thing in sight that signifies the faintest willingness to be enlisted by the mere raising of a hand or signing of a card and the rigid retaining of every name on the list, including the meanest and halt and blind and sick; they merely seek to hold their own. To succeed on this disgraceful plane they must dilute the gospel, make terms with sin and sinners, and cater to all the carnalities of men. Churches become social clubs. The singing must vie with the theatre to attract listeners. The sermon must be emasculated, instead of point, pith and power and made into a camel's hair brush to soothe itching ears. How heaven must be draped in mourning and the angels weep over such a tragedy.

The man who has grins for his friends and groans for his family, is false to the one and fiendish to the other.
The Editor's Survey

What if your coat be patched and old? The worth of a coat is easily told. A handful of gold will quickly bring a coat that is truly fit for a king; but an honest heart and a willing hand can never be bought in the whole wide land. Remember that patches may cover a boy. Who some day will be the world's greatest joy. If your soul be pure and your heart be true, What can an old coat matter to you?

The Four Pillars

John Wesley was a wise leader. The world is coming to recognize his wisdom and his worth to the world. Few men recognize the place, power and possibilities of discipline, as Mr. Wesley did, and few men utilized it to greater profit in the direction of a great ecclesiastical movement. Among the many wise observations which this eminent man of God made, was one made just before his death, in reply to a question propounded by a friend as to the future of Methodism. Replying, Mr. Wesley said:

"There are four capital principles, like pillars, that uphold this divinely-ordained movement: Doctrine, experience, practice and discipline. Emphasize doctrine alone, and you make antinomians; emphasize experience alone, and you make fanatics; emphasize practice unduly, and you make Pharisees; but emphasize all of these to the neglect of discipline, and it will be like a man who planted a vineyard without a hedge, thereby exposing it as a prey to every wild boar of the forest."

A True Witness

We are always delighted over cumulative evidence to any great spiritual truth. On the subject of the kind of preachers needed for the times, there is no room for doubt to candid well-informed minds. The dangers are too patent, the alarm is too widespread, the enemies are too thick around us to waste time in higgling over minor points. All thoughtful church leaders are coming to see the depth and direness and desperateness of the need of a change in the character of the clergy for meeting the demands of the day. The New York Christian Advocate gives editorial utterance to a great truth, when it says:

"The greatest preachers have been men of deepest religious experience. In the New Testament, none of them who were full of the Holy Ghost, and their speech and their preaching were not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and with power. Many modern preachers, by whose labors the Kingdom of God has been greatly enlarged, have attributed their efficiency to the conscious spiritual life begotten within them by the Holy Ghost. Some of them have related circumstantially the story of the beginning of this new life in them. It came upon them, in some cases, years after their conversion, and in some cases after they had preached the gospel for years. They were conscious of a definite experience like an inward baptism which came upon them at a certain time. Chalmers, Wesley, Bushnell, Moody, Summerfield and many others are witnesses of these things. Their profession has been to bear as clear a record of this experience as possible.

"These times require preachers of deep spiritual experience. This is an age of materialistic philosophy, of scientific skepticism, of insane greed, of social unrest, of industrial strife and political corruption. The Church of God faces a thoroughly equipped and stubborn foe. Satan cannot be cast out in this age by ecclesiastical machinery and strong religious committees with high-sounding programs. Preachers with a clear vision, with a perfect knowledge of the things of the Spirit, and with a vigorous, robust and healthy spiritual life are needed to lead the disciples of Christ against the powers of darkness."

Too Much More Than a Church

Romanism is an institution which is shielded from millions of rebukes and protests and enabled largely to accomplish its nefarious designs against free government and free religion by the unfortunate complexity of its organism. It is in a sense, but in a very poor sense, a church. It is in a far broader sense, and to a very dangerous degree, an organized rebellion against freedom in religion as well as in state. Once for all we wish to say that in any animadversions we make on this system, we speak of it as a political institution and not as a church. So far as its church nature is concerned, we have no more to do with it than we have with Methodism or Presbyterianism or Congregationalism. But so far as its bigger part, its political, intriguing, secular nature, designs and endeavors are concerned, we have very much to do. Let it be once for all understood that we deal with it only in this latter aspect. Herald and Presbyter makes this point well:

"If the Roman Catholic body were only a church, even though teaching the many errors and false doctrines that characterize the work of its priesthood, our attitude toward it would be very different from that to which we are driven by its conduct and claims on the secular side. For it has a secular side, and claims to have political influence in the state. It has means and to control politics. It has always made trouble for the civil power wherever it has been found. Although its interferences have been repudiated in many European countries where its machinations are best understood, it is plotting very widely. Very often the very good people do not seem to know it or to be in the slightest degree on their guard."

Here is what "The Catholic World," of New York, said recently: "The Roman Catholic is to wield his vote for the purpose of securing Catholic ascendancy in this country. All legislation must be governed by the will of God unerringly indicated by the Pope. Education must be controlled by the Catholic authorities, and under education the opinions of the individual and the utterances of the press are included. Many opinions are to be forbidden by the secular arm, under the plea that the church would be bloodyed." This is the faith of the entire priesthood and, from the Pope down through every grade, they are working for the time to come when they can dominate this land and put a stop to civil liberty and freedom of conscience.

Useful Advice on Prayer

Bishop McTyeire, of the M. E. Church South, died some twenty-five years ago. We had the pleasure of knowing him personally and enjoying his friendship. We greatly venerate his memory. We are not so that you could pray only in the morning. Then the mind is freest and the soul from thought, the spirit from distraction. Let us pray with separate days.

If in his will, in his career, in his influence, he did die poor. At his funeral a large number of students of the University were the sincere mourners whose grief was accentuated by the solicitude expressed by some of them in the words: "I don't know what we will do now; we have nobody to pay our way through." It turned out that the dear old man had literally not allowed his left hand to know what his right hand did in these matters and had used his large salary in helping scores of young men through the university as well as in other lines of benevolence until he literally did die poor. We feel inclined to take the advice of such a man as this on the subject of prayer. We find the following comment made by the Bishop on the words (Ps. v-3) "My voice shall thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look." as reported by an exchange:

If it were so that you could pray only once in the day, that one time should be in the morning. Then the mind is freest from thought, the soul from sorrow, and the flesh from weariness. Then the feelings of devotion spring up with most freshness as the lark rises upon the wing with a song.

We ought to pray often. The Psalmist agrees with the common estimate that food for the spirit is needed as often as food for the body. "Evening and morning and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud, and he shall hear my voice." Beyond that he was sometimes carried by grateful sense of divine goodness: "Seven times day do I praise thee, because of thy righteous judgments.

In the press of business there are those who neglect the Word of God, though they may have family prayers and even from private devotion. They hurry out to undertake the labor that waits for them or to begin the long journey. But they hold prayers at night when they have leisure. Then, too, perhaps they have a sense of danger and the need of protection; for most grown people, unless children, are afraid of the darkness.

But think of it! How many dangers beset you in a day’s work or pleasure or travel? You return in the evening too often, alas! burdened with a sense of re- sencies: the Word of God is not sufficiently recognized or utilized in the home in the way that come down from above. Look up to obtain grace to help you and to keep you through all your waking hours. Look up for guidance and for all the good gifts that come down from above. Look up and morally maintain this attitude all the day long.

Memory and the Bible
Commit much of the Bible to memory. It is a great and useful habit. Store the memory with the word as well as the thoughts and truths of the Bible. This will be found of incalculable benefit in mind training, memory developing, forming a refined taste in a literary way and in spiritual helpfulness. The power of the Word of God is not sufficiently recognized or utilized in the home in the way just indicated. Let parents diligently train their children in such memorizing of scripture, and you are gripped with hooks of steel the souls of the precious ones against violent assaults which will come against them in a day when you will have departed this life and cannot be with them to help them by your potent, personal ministry. Frederick Lynch, in the Congregationalist, says:

We wish that every boy and girl could read Ruskin’s great tribute to his mother, wherein he thanks her for having made him commit to memory the great passages of the Bible when he was a child. These verses, he says, became not only the great treasure of his mind but helped create whatever English style he had. Prof. Albert S. Cook of Yale has brought together in a little book on “The Bible and English Prose Style,” the testimonies of many writers to the effect that they owe the best of their work in the Bible to what they learned from the inspirational value of knowing this greatest literature of the ages, the joy and satisfaction of having the great verses in one’s heart is like that of having there great strains of music flowing through. For not only do these verses bring joy, inspiration, comfort and calm, but they express as well all the pent-up emotions of the heart. There is no great experience of life calling for expression but finds its fullest utterance in these words through which have welled up the deepest and divinest emotions of the world.

The Right Kind
There are many misconceptions of love. It is not a mere emotion. It is not a mere sentiment. It is not an intangible, ethereal, dreamy, impalpable something—fine subject for essays, for eloquent pulpit disquisitions—but really nerveless, unpractical, and having nothing to do with the real problems and great practical affairs of life. There could not be a greater mistake and scarcely a more serious one.

Love is intensely practical and has to do with life in all its verities, realities and practicalities and is needed for, and suited to, every turn in the road, every trial in the pilgrimage, every test encountered, every obligation imposed, every sorrow to be suffered, and every joy conferred. All of this will be proven by thoughtful reading of the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians. Herald and Presbyter says with point:

We grow eloquent in our preaching and in our testimonies over our love to Christ, when, in nine cases out of ten, we mean by nothing more than a passing emotion that will wither when the weather grows hot, and that may be changed into some other kind of emotion by a draught of wind or a severe attack of dyspepsia. Religious love is more than feeling—there is a will element in it. When Naomi was about to return to her native land from her far-wandering in Moab, her two daughters-in-law returned with her to the parting of the ways—the mountains of Moab. Orpha kissed her mother-in-law and returned to her native land; Ruth clave to her, and went on with her into the trouble of the Bible, the great truths of God, and we must spiritualize this knowledge that has power and which transforms and elevates human character. My friends who make the best of their Bible are the great evangelists of our country.

Ask Largely
Strange that with such a God, boundless in resources, changeless in His attitude of readiness and anxiety to hear, answer and prodigiously bless, that our requests are so poor and our expectations so meagre. He authorizes, yea, commands us to ask largely, to open our mouths wide. He challenges our faith with a seeming recklessness, and we only need to accept His divine challenge and make large demands and thus be largely blessed. We are not surprised when we think of these things that the declaration should be made with such infinite assurance “my God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus.”

“As of God that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not.” “All things whatsoever ye ask in prayer, ye shall receive.” God’s saints have tested His promises and hence can speak assuredly. Illustrative of God’s marvelous wealth of liberality in answering prayer, Watchword recites the following incident:

Alexander the Great had a famous but indigent philosopher in his court. This adept in science was once particularly straitened in his circumstances. To whom should he apply, but to his patron, the conqueror of the world? He no sooner made his request than it was granted. But when about to return to his mountains he was surprised by an emissary of the treasurer whatever he wanted. He immediately demanded in his sovereign’s name, ten thousand pounds. The treasurer, surprised at so large a demand, refused to comply; but waited upon the king and told him of the request, adding, “well, how much do you think he thought the petition, and how exorbitant the sum.” Alexander heard him with patience, but as soon as he had ended his remonstrance, he replied, “Let the money be instantly paid; I am delighted with this philosopher’s way of thinking. He has done me a service already, for now he will expect more than he should ever have expected.”

Fair Treatment of the Bible
Of the multiform phases of the Bible’s character the most marvelous, the most important and the most valuable to humanity, especially in the development of individual, religious life and character, is the inspirational or spiritual use to which the Bible was designed to be put. Sadly, other uses of the Book too often take precedence of this with multitudes of people. Let Bible students beware! They commit this error at imminent peril. This truth was strongly put by Mr. Chown in an address before the Methodist General Conference in Minneapolis:

We have been torturing out of the Bible all sorts of intellectual ideas, and we have not gone to the Word of God simply and solely for the personal enrichment of our own hearts. We need to do that. We have three kinds of truth; the truth which is temporal, which has its roots in the human mind; our doctrinal truth—we must study it, we must rationalize our belief perforce of being rational beings, but all through the word of God there is scattered inspirational truth. Browning says, “We are stung by the stinger of a sudden thought,” and as we read the Bible we are stung by the splendor of a vital thought. We must go to the Bible for the personal enrichment of our souls. The deeps of the Bible call unto the deeps of human nature, and the deeps of human life are not satisfied until they have reached to the bottom of the Bible, the great truths of God, and we must spiritualize this knowledge that has power and which transforms and elevates human character. My friends who make the best of their Bible are the great evangelists of our country.

How to Live the Sanctified Life

Fred H. Mendell

If I were to take a text from which to start in the explanation of the above named subject, there could be nothing more applicable than the words of Jude 20:21. "But ye have maintained the experience by your faith, which is committed unto you. Keep yourselves in the love of God, keep yourselves in the Holy Ghost, keep yourselves in all the vantage of the kingdom of God into his heart; and to the onward of years, as in days of old, it may still abide even when the physical conditions, which accompanied His incoming were altered.

If we keep our own on God's altar and are conscious that our consecration is complete, we have no right to think that He has ceased to do His part, even tho He may not manifest Himself, just as He did at the first. If, however, much time has elapsed since He manifested Himself, it was well to examine our hearts. The Abider will not sojourn long at a time without giving some manifest token of His presence.

But, let us look to the text. "Building up yourselves." The experience of entire sanctification is a mighty incentive to spiritual progress. The sanctified soul is placed in that position where the greatest growth and development are possible. Notice the advice of Peter (II Pet. 1:5-8), "Add to your faith, virtue, and to knowledge, temperance, and to knowledge, and to godliness, brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness, charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

"Praying in the Holy Ghost." Too much cannot be said along the line of prayer as a mighty agency in the retaining of the experience. Prayer, real prayer, is communion or fellowship with God. He who prays little, receives little and as a result has little. A neglect of the Word and prayer can result only in leanness of soul.

Perhaps the stress of the text should fall upon the words, "Keep yourselves." While it is true that in the experience we are "kept by people's lives" and that this is the experience in which we are "preserved," yet there is also a sense in which each sanctified soul does keep himself.

It takes heroism to reach heaven. Here may be the experience of a man in the midst of storm and life that "will live godly!" and that "presses toward the goal." Times come in the life of a sanctified soul when not only does the current retard our progress, but winds are adverse. At such times it were easier to drift with the stream; but with an inward appeal for divine assistance he who retains his vantage point, must bend to the oar and "keep himself in the love of God." At such seasons one must keep himself praying, keep himself trusting and keep himself building. Rest assured, the prayer for help will have its answer, and the experience which is committed unto Him, against that day.

In the matter of retaining the experience, as in all others, there must be a constant attention to fellowship with the Holy Ghost. He is the Great Teacher. By His side we shall never lack instruction. He is the great Guide. Carefully following His directions we shall not go astray. In fellowship with Him, prayer will be natural and faith easy. Upon Him let us lean, for He is our Rock, our Shelter, our Blessing, and possessing Him, we shall have all that we need. Amen.

Leaven

H. M. Chambers

It seems to me that the simile of Matt. 13:33, covers the whole parable. Not, "The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven," but "The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened." So that the meaning of the parable is to be determined by considering it as a whole, not by a single clause.

Leaven is an agent of decay out of which comes deadly poison, alcohol, for instance. This being true, it seems unlikely that Jesus, whose illustrations are so true to nature, would violate the order of nature and reverse the scriptural order by making leaven in its action a type of the beneficent spread of the gospel.

The true nature of leaven is recognized and its scriptural significance set forth in I Cor. 5:6-8, where the "leaven of malice and wickedness" is contrasted with the "unleaven of sincerity and truth." Jesus also makes the application of the simile of the leaven, of the poisonous false doctrine, or "leaven" of the Pharisees, Sadducees and Herodians.

Does not "leaven" mean the sin nature? Which "a woman," Eve, "took" at the devil's suggestion in the Garden of Eden, "and hid." Carnality is well hidden. The "Old Man" is an adept at disguises. "In three measures of meal," i.e., The whole human race. Dr. Walker suggests that the woman had meal enough to make a baking for the whole human family.

But the application is not correct, Matt. 13:33 likens the kingdom of heaven to a kingdom from which anarchy, while in subjection, has not yet been eradicated.

The brevity of the statement arrest the attention of the thoughtful and arouses his interest to consider and see what is to become of the antichrist.

Jesus recognizes the little child as in the kingdom of heaven, though yet carnal, and so also is the converted man who is not yet sanctified wholly. As fire destroys the leaven in the bread and makes it fit to eat, so the fire of the Holy Ghost will burn the leaven of inbred sin out of the heart of the converted man and establish the kingdom of God in his purified heart. This great work will be accomplished at the moment he wholly submits himself to God, and before he was sanctified wholly, he was in the kingdom of heaven, now the baptism of the Holy Ghost has put the kingdom of God into his heart; and to him a miniature millennial reign has begun.

Sanctification—How to Obtain The Blessing

G. E. Waddle

Hebrews 13:12: "Wherefore Jesus also that he might sanctify the people with His own blood, suffered without the gate." I shall leave the definition of the term "sanctification" to those who are more able to dispute as to its meaning, and content myself with Mr. Webster's plain, ready definition — "Sanctification means elevated authority: "An act of God's grace by which men's affections are purified and exalted." Sanctify, 1st. "To make sacred, to set apart to a religious use, to hallow," 2nd. "To free from sin, to purify, to sanctify." It seems to me this to be a statement of harmony with the understanding of the word which is used in the New Testament, especially when it is used as a state, or condition when applied to individuals.

These who may read this article I invite to make a careful investigation with me of a few passages of Scripture bearing immediately upon this point. Jno. 17:17.
"Sanctify them through thy truth." A careful investigation of the preceding verses of this chapter, will convince the most skeptical of the efficacy of sanctification those prayed for enjoyed. Verse three says, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee." Verse eight says, "For I have given them the words which thou hast given me, and they have received them and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me." "I pray for them, I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine."

Verse six and verse seven say, "The seventh not of the world, even as I am not of the world, and yet in His last prayer, He said, "Sanctify them." In the twentieth verse of the same chapter, He said, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word." I offer you this short argument first to show you that the disciples were in a high state of justification, before Jesus prayed for their sanctification. And, secondly, to prove that as long as there is a body of unchristians, unsanctified, that prayer of Jesus will be repeated, forever.

In case the reader of this article is an unsanctified believer, the prayer of Jesus Christ refers to you, in the same way as is due to the disciples, at the very hour the prayer was uttered. The truth is, my brother or sister, there is more pernicious in your entire sanctification than anybody in this world could be, for in the nineteenth verse of this chapter He said, "And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth. You call to mind that Jesus Christ carried out the will of the Father perfectly. The bloody sweat of the garden, the mock trial, the false accuser, the cruel crown of thorns, the awful load of the Roman cross, the fearful climb of Golgotha's rugged brow, the excruciating pain of the thorns that went into the living flesh of the Son of God. Watch them now; they are raising that cross; hear the measured tone of the officer, as he counts one, two, three; hear the dull sickening thud, as the cross descends into the hole that was prepared for it; look at Him now; that lack of anguish on His face, the blood is dripping from His hands and feet; hear Him as He says, "My God! My God! Why hast thou forsaken me?"

Who is that fellow coming there with that spear in his hand? Watch him there. Why is he going? He is piercing the side of the Son of God; the flow of blood begins to trickle down His side; hear Him lift His voice once more, saying, "I thirst," but watch His enemies, notwithstanding His thirst, also His great lead as He bears the sins of the world, the weight of our sins, and His body mingle with galle. What are you doing, Jesus, to stand this cruel treatment? If you are the Son of God, why don't you come down from the cross!? "For this cause I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth." "We are called to walk in His steps." When Jesus sanctified Himself, He went the death route. Most people come to the altar to be made to feel good, but few care anything about being crucified with Christ; but there is no sanctification without sacrifice. Regeneration means life, while sanctification means death, or if it please you better, the destruction of these principles that hinder this new life. Some have said that there is a human and a divine side to sanctification; I cannot agree with this statement. The human side is consecration; the divine side is sanctification. You will have all the consecrating, and God will have to do all the sanctifying. In proof of this I call your attention to John 14:16, which says, "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Paraclete, that the world may know that I sent him."

Verse twenty says, "The world could not love us, because it knew us not; but if we had loved them, the world would have loved us also; but how could we love them, when our Lord foretold that they would hate us? As He says, "If the world hated you, you knew that it had hated me before it hated you. If you had been of the world, the world would have loved its own: but because you are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you."

May we not profit by this bit of history? No man ever yet lost the way while obeying the scriptural injunction, to shun the very appearance of evil. But, strange as it may seem, there is a wonderful fascination about certain kinds of temptation, and in spite of God's word, and of His threat of punishment, in the case of temptation, exactly as a cat plays with a mouse. The cat will lay the mouse down, and appear not to see it, but when the mouse tries to make its escape, the cat will jump at it as quick as a flash. But he tries it again; he pays less attention to the mouse, and risks it a little further when, to the terrible chagrin of the cat, it passes behind the box and is gone.

Take for instance two people of the opposite sex whose duties throw them together quite a good deal. At first a nature and character springs up between them; next they step over the bounds of propriety just a little; they are each heartily ashamed, and would hardly admit it to the best friend in the world; but they fail to follow God's admonition, to shun the appearance of evil. Finally whatever barriers are between them are broken down, the fatal plunge is made, two lives are blasted, two homes are wrecked, and the church of God has been disgraced, and the cause of Jesus Christ injured permanently.

Say what you will, there is a positive and negative between people. Some people affect you and some people don't; whatever some folks do has the same effect on some others that it does to say "Kitty" to a cat. I have met people, that whatever they did seemed all right. I have met others that repulsed me; one seemed to be saying "Kitty," while the other was saying "Scat."

If you will watch a cat that is being petted, and watch his actions while he is being stroked with the hand, and listen to the mouse, you will exactly perceive that I have in mind, as to the effect that some persons have on certain others.

No man is a match for temptation unless he obeys God's word. In Greenville, Texas, a few years ago, there was a great house that was built of brick. The building was thought to be dangerous; the pro priest became uneasy, and an expert was hired to come and examine the building. After careful study, he told the proprietor that the building was dangerous, and it was only a matter of time when it would collapse.

Like others, however, the expert put the evil day far off, and registered and spent a night in that hotel, and lost his life in the ensuing explosion. Doubtless many a man, whose fearful crash had startled the Christian world, could have written a much better piece on this subject than I am able to write.

Delusions

We are on the enemy's camping ground. Satan is the incarnation of deception. Delusion is false representation. Truth is in harmony with all delusion, deception, all that is misleading. False representation, illusion, errors of mistake grow out of false views of truth.

The kingdom of darkness is founded on delusive thinking and acting. It is a mighty system of error, made delusively to appear as the truth.

The mistakes of our reasoning and judgment proceed from false views. We have false views because of the delusions of the devil, the littleness of our intellectual conceptions and the greatness of the devil. We are the instruments of God's operation where the air is blue with the smoke of the Satanic torment. The world of the lost is all about us. Peril is in every breath. The viper's breath poisons every thing in contact with us. We have delusions of imagination, of sight, of memory. Delusions of false doctrines, propagated in so gilded a manner of speech and acting that the one who is the least out of harmony with God is beset, receives and reaps the reward. The illusions appear real, they lead to disappointing expectations. Here "soft illusions, dear deceits, arise."

The realm of the forces of evil is the "mystery of iniquity"—the ruler, the arch-enemy of the world of darkness. The sinner without God goes gradually into this "outer darkness." The walls of this charnel house are painted with the wrecks of time. This "wicked" shall be revealed whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of His mouth and shall destroy with the brightness of His coming—(2 Thess. 2:8)—this One whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and lying wonders, with all deceivableness of unrighteousness, in those who perish. Why? "Because they receive not the love of the truth."

My brothers, these skies shall find a cleansing of the illusive deception. God sends now a strong delusion that the incorrigibles "should believe a lie that they might be damned." This "wicked" is already revealed to God's people. Those who know God are not in darkness as to deceptive operations of this kingdom of deception.

One come-out, professing to be a preacher, goes into the meetings of the denominations and takes possession, to propagate his false teaching under Satanic delusion that he is the only real gospel preacher on earth.

Some people are delusionalists, and I say in truth, all impenitent sinners are in this class. They are believing a lie when they consort with the prince of delusionists and disbelieve God. If they believed God they would deny him. To gospelize him to them as an idle tale. It appears as it is not. At conversion their loves have been reversed. The things they once loved they now hate. A normal condition of mind and affection displaces the delusions. They then return to the true; for the kingdom under normal mind and heart conditions.

All unbelief in any heart allies that spirit to the great traducing system of unrighteousness. The domination of the kingdoms are distinct. There is no admixture. To compromise with Satan is the very soul out of the other kingdom. God and the devil are in eternal antagonism. These are awful days of the mixing of the true with the ridiculous and call it of God. Oh, how Jesus must weep, not alone over Jerusalem, but over the world under the sway of the world that lieth in the lap of the wicked one.

One of the delusions of the devil, is for the so-called Christian people, of a little city I know, to join hands, have a dance, pay a certain price, to go to the treasury to relieve the poor of its precious, then testify to the goodness of the deed.

One of the properties of divorce is the way many divorces are made. Few understand or know the vileness of it. Gossipers get the ear of a bride; they fill it with suggestion under the poison of delusion; they pour it in against the husband. A base defeat of life, the divorce court severs the bonds that make a home—God's greatest institution. This home lies in ashes and sorrow and regrets that make the angels weep.

Oh, how I have seen the shadows of this poisonous tree wreck the dreams of more than one man, where a husband and wife—go out in desolation and mourning from their fireside with the finger of scorn ever toward them, to destroy their Christian testimony. The seed was sown by instigation of the devil in seeking truth under cover of delusion.

The one who here is the high-wayman—Your money or your life."

"Iniquity worketh"—under cover of delusions; darkness is "loved." The light shows it up as begotten in the shades of hell. Only those who are rescued can know the workings of the prince of darkness. The truly sanctified find a field where "Satan worketh," that is insidious, unknown in a lower Christian experience. The foolish methods used on the sinner for ruin, or even the converted one, are of no avail in the higher Light."

Delusions of Grandeur

"Watch, again I say Watch." The roaring lion, or the viper in the grass delusively seeks your life. Hide away in the inclosed presence of God; there is safety. Riverside, Calif.

Disgusting Facts

An eight-year-old boy was brought before the New York Supreme Court by the widow of the mother, or young tramp. The charge against him was that he was picking up cigar stumps in streets and gutters. The boy had many of these dirty, foul-smelling butts in a basket, and when asked what he intended to do with them he replied that a large number of them were for him, and a like number for his mother. The cigarett maker was the one who deserved to be arrested instead of the ignorant boy.

A bright boy of 13," says The Charleston Mirror, "made a meal of the spirit of the devil, the boy poor boy replied with tears that he had only tried a cigarette. Another of ten was made crazy by cigarette smoking and was taken to an insane asylum. He was regarded as a violent and dangerous maniac, exhibiting some of the symptoms peculiar to hydrophobia." Do you wonder that we are whispering to save boys from the cigarette habit?—Selected.

Pigeons In History

Doubtless you admire the pretty, graceful creatures that perch upon the eaves of your house, or waft themselves through your yard, but did you ever think what a factor they have been in the history of the world?

Pigeons, as commonplace as they appear, are characters of antiquity. We hear reference to them as early as the Jews, who in the time of Solomon, cut their wings that they might not escape. It is supposed that at this period, when the dove covered the face of the earth, when the faithful dove flew from the hand of Noah and returned to her master, bearing the significant olive branch. "Dove" is the Anglo-Saxon name; "pigeon" the Norman name.

During the fifth Egyptian dynasty, three thousand years before Christ, it was the fashion to domesticate pigeons, and to train them as carriers and messengers. The promptness with which Caesar was informed of the rebellions in Gaul, and thereby enabled to cross the Alps before those uprisings could possess the entire province, was due to the use of carrier pigeons. In the Crusades, these birds were skillful and faithful messengers.

The price of a handsome pair of pigeons in ancient Rome was not a trifle, for Ayesha, Roman knight, once sold a pair of pigeons for forty denarii—about sixty-five dollars in our currency. At that time too, they were by far the swiftest conveyers of news, and were much in demand at the celebration of the Olympic games. During the Middle Ages, the states connected with the imprisonment of Mary Queen of Scots, she begs earnestly for a pigeon, and writes in a letter: "I beg you to procure for me some pigeons. I wish to rear them in cages; it will be such a pastime for a prisoner."—The Household.

Choose Whom You Will Serve

One summer afternoon a young man sat under the pines on a sloping hillside thinking deeply. Two hours passed and suddenly he raised his eyes to the distant mountains, and asked himself, "That which I will" sent him to an island in the South Pacific to spend his life with a degraded, barbarous race, whose eyes he slowly opened until they saw their Creator and worshiped Him.

A few weeks later another young man was sitting on a bench in a green and beautiful park. He seemed to be thinking earnestly. Suddenly he said aloud, "After all, I will," and sauntered off to join companions who had invited him to a game in the corner club room. That "I will" cost him in the end home and friends, and sent him to a prison cell—a thief. Exchange.
The Hidden Life

Where the Wicked Cease from Troubling
By Mrs. J. M. Hunter.

Just beyond the "Vale of Shadows"
Lies the lovely Land of Light,
Where the saints of all the ages
Shall, at last, through Christ unite.

What a meeting, what a greeting
Of the faithful and the best,
Where the wicked cease from troubling,
And the weary are at rest.

Here we have a constant battle
With the foes of right and truth;
Everywhere we see the power
Of the tempter's cruel blight;
But up there no sin can enter.

We shall be no more oppressed,
Where the wicked cease from troubling,
And the weary are at rest.

Now we see the weak and humble
Crushed beneath the heel of greed;
Little ones are left in anguish—
Oh, how pitiful their need—
But a better time is coming.

They shall never be disgraced,
Where the wicked cease from troubling,
And the weary are at rest:
Oh, the beauty, oh, the glory
That shall dawn upon our sight,
Oh, the safety, peace and comfort,
Where no evil can affright.

They shall be no more opprest,
Where the faltful and the blest,
And the weary are at rest.

The Bible

The revelation of the Bible is a beam on which the Father of lights descends into men to dwell with them. Sweeter than the dews of six thousand summers is the living bread which the Bible brings to a perishing world. What though it rained gold and pearls and king's crowns on our guilty race, it were better to give them the Bible. Salvation! Weigh it against all created things. Measure it by eternity. Lay the plummet of infinity to its blessing. Appeal to him who weighs the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance to teach you its worth. Climb to the throne of the Eternal, where the universe collects her glories to deck the palace of our King, and thence survey all things that are made. Salvation excels all you know and see; for it makes God Himself your everlasting portion.—S. O. Pool, in Biblical Teacher.

One in Christ

Every member of the Church of Christ has a vital interest in the welfare of every other member. The whole body of Christ is the body of the Head, and all the prayers of every member of that body. If this be not the case, the Church is weakened by the fact. The Church is strong and vigorous and effective in proportion to the sympathy, work and prayer given by all the members of it.—Exchange.

What Makes a Great Life

Do not try to do a great thing; you may waste all your life waiting for the opportunity. But since little things are always claiming your attention, do them as they come, from a great motive, for the glory of God, to win His smile of approval and do good to men. It is harder to plod on in obscurity, acting thus, than to stand on the high places of the field, within the reach of all the deeds of valor at which rival armies stand still to gaze. But no such act goes without the swift recognition and the ultimate recompense of Christ. To fulfill faithfully the duties of your station; to use the uttermost of your gift in service; to bear chaffing and trivial irritations as martyrs bore the pillory and stake, to find the one noble trait in people who try to molest you, to put the kindest construction on unkind acts and words, to love with the love of God even the unthankful and evil; to be content to be a foundation in the midst of a wild valley of stones nourishing a few lichens and wild flowers, or now and again a thirsty sheep; and to do this always, and not for the praise of man, but for the sake of God—this makes a great life.—F. B. Myer.

Counterfeits

It is not always easy to detect a counterfeit, whether it be a dollar or a jewel or piece of cloth, but when once discovered what contempt one has for the counterfeit and the counterfeiter. In nothing is a counterfeit so contemptible as in religion. A religion that is adopted just for gain or to avoid penalty in life to come, that does not issue in love of God and surrender to His will, manifesting itself in a transformed and righteous life, is only a counterfeit.—Michigan Presbyterian.

To stand unharmed and undismayed amidst the changes and chances of this mortal life; to possess one's soul in perfection; to conquer, come what may, whatever it is to conquer, come what may, this is no common achievement. There are no fame or gain; no any such act goes with this! They who are of this mind are saved; that is, they are spiritually sound and well. And they are saved by virtue of their unfailing harmony with that invisible environment of the Divine Presence which they see with the eyes of faith.—George Hodges.

He reads what we do by His knowledge of what we are. We reveal to one another what we are by what we do, and, as a commonplace, none of us can penetrate, except very superficially and often indifferently, to the motives which move us. But the motive is three-fourths of the action. God does not go from without, as it were, inwards; from our actions to estimate our characters; but He starts with the character and the motive—the habitual and the occasional motive—and by these He reads the deed. He weighs, ponders, penetrates to the heart of the thing, and He weighs the spirits.—Alexander MacLaren.

The early resort to intoxicants by the youthful slave of nicotine is due to the cry of outraged nerves, poisoned by tobacco, for restoration of their lost equilbrium.—Matthew Woods, Member of the National Association for Study of Epilepsy.
How the Lord Answered a Child's Prayer

MARY WILAND.

This is a true story of a little girl named Alice, who had been surrounded with plenty and had known no care until she was about eight years old. Then her father decided to go west and settle in a new country. Everything was sold except a good wagon and a fine team of horses. With these the father decided to travel through the country to the place he wanted to go with his wife and five children. Of course, being new was the last thing they wanted to do.

One day they came to a place where there was a man working on a farm. He was busy raising crops, but he agreed to go with his wife and children. Alice was named Alice, who had been surrounded by beauty. She was afraid of him.

The country, in which the newcomers were settled, was desolate. There was no one to help them. One of the worst adversities was gone, but another adversity followed. The horses died, and one adversity followed another. The next spring a terrible drought occurred. The next spring the family decided to go west and try their fortunes again.

By this time there were more than diamonds coming from heaven down. While she prayed a beautiful voice spoke to her bedside.

Oh, Aunt Alice, look at that gorgeous yellow and black spider over on that bit of limb sticking out of the water!” cried Hilda Warren dancing on one foot in delight.

Aunt Alice looked up from the leaves of a small plant which she was examining carefully. She was a fine fellow, and he answered, “The spider is going to try to escape from that branch. If you notice, it is a number of feet to the shore on either side, and the spider cannot stay where he is always. He was probably braved out of love before he could secure himself with a web, and has climbed on that limb to escape drowning. Let’s watch him for awhile.”

Aunt Alice and Hilda seated themselves on the bank of the river and watched the handsome spider as he rushed excitedly from one end of the branch to the other. At last he seemed to settle down to business, and they could see that he was spinning a web, long and silken, which floated off to the east on the summer breeze.

“Aunt Spider is hoping that web will attach itself to a reed or something on the bank and thus make a bridge for him to cross over on,” explained Aunt Alice, and Hilda sat still for two whole minutes on a rock. The spider stopped spinning and seemed to watch the web, and then he was perched. He was so happy that he could scarcely keep still. She feared to make a noise that would awaken her father, for he was a stern man and she was afraid of him.

She got in bed and listened for the raindrops. She knew it was going to rain. It was raining, and the air was saturated with moisture. She was so happy she could scarcely contain herself. Finally, she went to sleep.

Next morning there was a surprise for her father. He wondered why it had rained all night. He was content to go on to see what the rain had done. He was afraid of his father, who was a stern man and he was afraid of him.

Tobacco is a powerful sedative poison which is locally irritant. In many cases of nervous breakdown attributed to overwork, the excessive use of tobacco has certainly been an important factor. —The United States Dispensatory.
Billy and the Dwarf

Billy was called a bothersome boy. His brothers and sisters thought him a bother because he was always teasing them. The neighbors closed their doors when they saw him coming, for he was sure to get into mischief. The chickens all ran into the corner of the yard when he came, for he was likely to chase them; and the kittens, and hid, too, for he was not good to them.

Billy sat one evening on a hassock. He was lonely, and he was thinking, "I guess nobody likes me," when suddenly a funny little man, about as big as his thumb, hopped upon his head, and said, "Tell me, Billy, if you will make people like me, I will." "Yes," said Billy, "if you will make people like me." "I will," said he. "But you must promise to do everything I say. I will get into your coat pocket, and you must listen and obey." Billy thought it would be very nice to have the tiny creature always with him, so he promised. Then he lifted him gently into his pocket.

Just then his father called: "Billy, run into the house for my newspaper." Billy was just on the point of saying, "Can't somebody else get it?" when the dwarf called in his sharp little voice: "Run, Billy, run on tiptoe. Then Billy ran on tiptoe, found his father's paper, and brought it with him.

Just then Billy heard the voices of his brothers and sisters, who had been to the woods for flowers and birch. They had gone without inviting Billy, for they thought he would be in the way. Billy ran up to them, and said: "I think you're real mean," he was about to say, when the dwarf whispered: "Billy, share your apples." Billy had a bigful that his uncle had given him. He had meant to eat them all himself; but when he heard that tiny voice, he skipped away to the shed, got his bag of apples, and gave a big rose one to each of his brothers and sisters. They were surprised, and they gladly shared their birch and flowers with the little brother who had been so generous to them.

Early the next morning Billy remembered the old hen had a coopful of fluffy yellow ducklings. As soon as he dressed he ran out to see them. He found them all running to hide under their other wing. One chicken lost its way and Billy began chasing it. But the dwarf still resting in his pocket, whispered: "Give the duckling some breakfast, Billy." Billy heard the little voice. Then he ran quickly and shelled an ear of corn for the mother hen. He mixed some Indian meal with water in a big yellow bowl for the chickens. They all gathered around him, and he fed them, and, as he did not try to catch any of them, now that they were afraid of him no longer.

On his way to school that morning Billy met Sambo, a little boy in a big straw hat. Billy's hand went up to snatch the big straw hat and throw it over the fence for that tiny dwarf called out: "Ask him to play ball with you." "Sam, Sambo, will you play with my new ball at recess?" said he. "Yes," said Sambo. "Do you mean it?" "To be sure," said Billy with a smile.

The boys had a fine game of ball at recess, and in a few days Sambo had said that Billy was always good to him now.

As Billy walked toward home that afternoon he remembered a pond where fishes played. He whispered to his little brother, "Let's run away to the pond," though his mother had often said: "Never go to the pond unless I am with you." But, thought Billy, if his pocket said: "Go ask your mother." Billy's mother was sitting on the porch, and the boys politely raising their caps, asked her: "Will you please go with us to the pond?" Mother was pleased to see the children so courteous, and she got up and went with them.

One night Billy sat again on his big stone at the bottom of the steps. He was saying o himself: "Most everybody likes me, I guess." The dwarf whispered from his pocket: "Shall I stay with you, Billy?" "Yes," said Billy, "I will not let you go."

Let me congratulate you and the readers of the Holiness Herald that you have secured Dr. B. F. Haynes as Editor of your paper.

Twenty-five years ago young Brother Haynes was the pastor of McKendree Church, then the leading church of the Tennessee Conference and perhaps of Southern Methodism. That church reached its greatest prosperity I think during his pastorate. He was an ardent advocate of temperance and a devout opposer of worldly amusements, serving as Chairman on such Committees in the Tennessee Conference. While Presiding Elder of the East Nashville District he led the Conference in the conflict for "Conference Rights vs. Episcopal Prerogative," and as result of which he was sent to a very ordinary circuit.

The "Tennessee Methodist" was established and by request of the Conference he was appointed Editor and led the delegation from the Tennessee Conference to the General Conference of 1884 and won honor in his able defense of his Conference before the Committee on Episcopacy. He was the leader of the Tennessee Conference as editor of our paper and was Secretary of our Conference for several years. Then he heartily endorsed the Holiness Movement when it struck the conference, and all his ardor, zeal and self-sacrifice was unavailing. His handsome suburban home with more than twenty acres of very valuable land was sacrificed to keep up Zion's Outlook (first called Tennessee Methodist). But he knew no surrender of principle.

I am glad he has found a place and people who will I trust appreciate his ability and fidelity and give the paper a wide and deserving circulation. Very truly,
S. M. CHERRY, 57th year effective member of the Tennessee Conference, Pastor of Humfrey St. Church, Nashville, Tennessee.

On Pilgrimage

There is but one thing that can make the outlook of a trip five months long, with eight on nine thousand miles of travel, and a dozen meetings—district assemblies, camp meetings and other special services—appear enticing; and that is, the privilege of here and there preaching the glorious gospel, and joining with the blood-washed hosts in shouting on the victories of the cross. We have been permitted up to this time to remain 1,500 miles to Seattle, Wash. The trip from Los Angeles to Seattle, no matter how often made, never loses its interest. Beside the sea, over beautiful outspreading plains, through the valleys, along the streams, crossing the great rivers, climbing the precipitous mountains, is more than ever the home for the holiness people of Washington. The missionaries have returned from the hills and decided to be permanent. We assisted them in per­ culticate holiness, after much thought and courtesy. We have been permitted to remain four days, and that add to the difficulties, with anything that is considered by them new.

Brother and Sister Douglas and Brother Leatris came over from Vancouver and helped much in the revival. There has also been an out­ section on this Canadian Pacific, who were overtaken by a snow storm so severe as to tie them up under very difficult circumstances. Finally finding a way to telegram to the General Superintendent, they asked him what he advised? He telegraphed back, “Prayer and patience.” This band of heroes at Victoria will doubtless need this same advice. But our God is able to give them the victory.

On Monday afternoon a delightful sail of five hours to the Sound, made it possible to visit the beautiful Islands, brought us to Vancouver. We went from the boat directly to the Central Mission Hall, where I was to preach. This mission occupies a block, with a fine auditorium. We had a good hearing, and it was a delight to spend the first hour in the city preaching holiness and to see one man seek and find the blessing. This is a city of a hundred and fifty thousand people. It seems in the midst of what we in Yankee-land would call “a boom”—much uncontrolled building and movement in real estate. We had the pleasure of meeting here our dear friends Rev. and Mrs. D. Rand Pierce, from this city. The condition of her health demanding a change, they are here. We hope that their coming may hasten the establishment of a real centre of spiritual service.

P. F. BRESKE.

From Report of President M. A. Beeson,
Meridian Male College.

This is my ninth year as president of the Male College. In many respects this has been by far the best session in the history of the school. We had more students in the College Department than ever before, and we have done a much better class of work. Students from some of the best families from twenty-two states, and from Cuba, Porto Rico, Mexico and Canada have been enrolled. As a rule the students have come for real work, and our school work has been excellent. The health record of the College has been phenomenal. We have had no serious illness during the session, and very few have lost any time from studies on account of sickness.

Spiritually, I can truthfully say with Paul, that He has done exceeding, abundantly above all that we could ask or think. We opened our school with a revival and a number were saved, reclaimed and sanctified. In October Brother E. A. FeFerguson held a ten days' re­ festival, and something like three hundred students were saved and sanctified, and were sent to preach and to the mission field. After the revival the students held a service every day just after supper for an hour, and during the entire year there have been anywhere from thirty to seventy-five students present at each service.

Buldana Berar, India.

The missionaries have returned from the hills today. The rains are very late this year. Indeed it seems that another famine is threatening us. I fear it could be worse. Indeed God is in the lead, and where He leads me I will follow. Thy brother

L. A. CAMPBELL.

Indianapolis, Ind.

A tent meeting, held by the Nazarenes of this city, closed on Sunday night, July 21st, with gracious victory, and much blessing upon all who were privileged to be present. After seventeen nights of faithful preaching by James Short, evangelist and son-in-law of Sister Wines, our pastor, who was present to pray, exhort and shout on the battle with honor, we might have more of the seekers, having found a definite experience, a number of them coming through shouting and shining.

The last Sunday night service was characterized by deep conviction after a most con­ inving heart-searching sermon by Bro. Short, that resulted in an altar filled with seekers, several coming through in the old fashioned way that stirred all hearts, and rewarded those who faithfully stood by the meeting in prayer and attendance. The attendance both inside and outside the tent was good, and no doubt the unusual results are due partly to the necessity was unaccustomed to full salvation preaching. The Lord delights to bless the Naz­ arenes at Indianapolis. We are just now com­fortable and happy over a brand new church, with pastor, covering pulpit and class room with main floor, and a coat of new paint—"—and the singing and shouting and pray­ing to bring it to pass, but best of all, the Lord is with us; with frequent show­ers of blessings upon our souls when we come together to worship Him—in the beauty of Holiness. We are going on—expecting greater things.

MRS. C. W. RUTH.

Grace Church, Washington, D. C.

Grace Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene is only a few months old but we are really alive and in a healthy condition, with a membership of forty or more.

How we thank God for sending Dr. Walker to Washington City... From Pastor Proby's probecting hand in many ways and we recognize His direct guidance in every detail, until there is no room for anything but a strong confidence in Him to lead us on to certain victory.

We are greatly blessed in securing Rev. H. G. Trumbauer, of Pennsylvania as our pastor—"a man full of the Holy Spirit and faith. We, therefore expect many people to be added unto the Lord, (Acts 11:24) as we unite with Him in this battle against Satan's kingdom.

We have a most comfortable brick church building, large auditorium and Sunday School rooms. We greatly appreciate our church home for we have people of Washington who have always had to worship in a hall or dwelling house until now. We have done some visit­ing among the people in the vicinity of the church, inviting them to our services and solicting Sunday School scholars and the outlook is most encouraging in every way. A number of strangers are already coming to our services. We are well blessed for His smile is upon us, and we feel that "nothing really matters so the Lord loves us, and He does—Oh! yes He does."

We are all delighted with our church family, the Herald of Holiness. It is substantial, clean and helpful.

EVELYN GOOCH MYERS.

Duran, Okla.

I am here in a hard fight, but God is giving victory. Thirty-one have prayed through to divine victory. I served my first year in pastoral work here. Bro. J. H. Miller is pastor at present. Meeting will continue over Sunday. Yours in Him.

B. F. PRITCHETT.
Herald of Holiness

July 31

Eskridge, Kans.

Greeting in Jesus' precious name. We are so glad to report victory in Jesus and the blessed Holy Ghost abides in our hearts. Amen! We opened fire last night near Auburn, Kans., in a large tent. We are looking for a great meeting and presidents were saved. Praise the Lord. Glory! Glory! We trust the Lord will make the Herald of Holiness a great blessing to all the Nazarenes and also to everyone with whom it comes in contact.

Married.

In Eskridge, Kans., at the residence of the bride's parents, Prof. R. E. Young and Miss Golden L. Trusler, July 17th, 1912, Rev. C. H. Croft officiating. Prof. Young is a graduate of the Peniel University. For two years he has been president of the Eskridge Bible School and a teacher there since he graduated from the college. Mr. and Mrs. W. Trusler, who have the large general store in Eskridge and very prominent In holiness work. We commend them both wherever they go as able to sing, testify, pray or preach to the glory of God. They will spend a few weeks in Colorado Springs, after which they will return to Kansas to take up school work.

CHAS. H. CROFT.

Elysian Heights, Los Angeles.

Sunday the 21st was the greatest day at this church we have seen in our four years as pastor. In the morning after a sermon, Zech. 4:6, "By my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts," every soul, sinner, backslider and saint was moved toward God. Some came through clear and happy. God was with us in power at night also. We have perfect harmony in the church, making it easy to expect things to happen and things are beginning to happen.

God has given us a love for the house to house ministry; all timidity about preaching the gospel to individuals is gone. We see signs of fruit from this also.

Our list of subscribers to our paper is growing. We are not ashamed to offer it to anybody.

The intellectual and spiritual depth of the paper gives us confidence in presenting it to the people. Members of other churches and even sinners among them are trying to be able to send in 1000 new subscriptions from this district alone. Yours for victory.

A. E. REINSCHMIDT.

Upland, Calif.

These past Sundays have been blessed of the Lord. Good congregations have greeted us at every service. God sent a real landside this morning, folks went and shouted and two were gloriously saved and quite a number of hands up for prayer. People seem to be digging down into the things of God. We are expecting the Lord to give us a great harvest this year. He is working for us and we give Him the glory. Our S. S. superintendent, Bro. Masten, is doing good work and bringing the work to the front. Praise God for what He is doing and what He is going to do. Yours in the war.

G. F. GOETTEL.

Marshalltown, Iowa.

God is giving victory at Marshalltown, Iowa—large crowds are attending the services, the spirit of revival is in the air; there were two seekers yesterday—one of the cases remarkable. A lady came to the altar and was saved. Also her husband. She is an accomplished lady—but from all indications was about to be made the victim of white slavery—thank God for her salvation.

F. J. THOMAS, Pastor.

Mouse River Holiness Camp.

This is the district camp meeting for the Dakota-Montana district. This year it was held July 4-14 on their beautiful grounds on Mouse River, at Sawyer, N. D. God was with us from start to finish. The best I could keep track of the presenters were about 75 that were either saved or sanctified. Bro. Lyman Brough, Dist. Supt. with his corps of consecrated pastors and laymen helped to shout the battle on. My, how these people pray! They storm the skies and showers of grace and power came upon the people of God. It has been many a day since I met with such a fire baptized set of people. They are Nazarenes of the best type. Brough, Morris, Irving, Prine and Shipley brought heaven-sent messages. Greater things are coming for the Nazarene hosts in those states of the North. People were present from Minn., N. Dak. and Montana, this being the largest camp yet held.

This poor preacher was treated with great kindness and was well cared for financially. I shall not soon get over this. Praise the Lord.

Chas. Weigle and Arthur Ingler are expected next year.

JOS. N. SPEAKES.

Spokane, Wash.

Closed at Killyard Sunday night with a dozen or so at the altar. Our people there are negotiating for a church lot to build a church on. They raised about $100 to pay down and they are moving for God. Our camp meeting at Spokane, Wash., will be held August 8th to 18th on the campus of Eastern A. & I., and Division St. Tents can be had from $2.00 to $3.00, according to size. Cots and mattresses for $50 apiece. Good city water and other things free. Stores near the camp ground. Dining hall, meals 25 cents. Write to 712 Nora Ave., and order your tents right away. Dr. P. F. Breese, Dr. E. P. Elyison will be in charge, and Rev. and Mrs. DeLance Wallace and a number of other preachers from the district will be present to help push the battle. All preachers from the Northwest district will be entertained free. Come praying and expecting a great time of salvation.

A. O. HENNICKS, Pastor.

Dublin, Tex.

Dear Herald of Holiness: It has been some time since I wrote, but I have not been idle by my means. The Lord has been blessing my work.

Bro. Jeffries held our summer meeting at Dublin in June and the Lord gave victory with 27 souls in the fountain.

I closed a meeting last Sunday night at Pleasant View, near Hastings. The Lord met with us in power in every service. Forty bright souls in the fountain; 25 of this number were sanctified. Bro. Frank Pierce is pastor of this church and he is a Spirit-filled man and is doing great good for his church. He has as fine a band of workers as are seen and we know how to pray for the fire down. We are now in a battle at Bethel, Tex., with Bro. M. V. Dillingham and wife. We desire your prayer that God will give victory.

G. W. McCULSKY, Pastor.

Plasville, Kans.

Yesterday was a day of victory; the morning message was brought by the writer. One young man prayed through during altar service; the Spirit came in a flood and the souls shouted for joy. God preachers in power of the Spirit in the evening. Street meeting was good.

C. E. WILLIAMS.

East Palestine, Ohio.

The work of the Lord is moving along with a swing of victory here. The work is deepening among the members. Some are seeking the Lord and several are about to the breaking point. The Lord is setting His seal in a very marked manner. P. B. Estes got out appointment at Jintown. Several have given up the Lord and the interest is on the increase. The pastor's wife has charge out there now. This church maintains nine meetings a week so we are always happy. There is scarcely a week that souls are not at our altars. For this we thank God.

E. E. WOOD, P. C.

Keene, N. H.

Our pastor, Bro. Harry R. Jones, is a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and faith, and through God's blessing upon him and us the tide is rising.

We are seeing new faces in our meetings, a steady increase in numbers and interest. Often the place is filled with the glory of God.

We pray Him for victory in our souls, and as we wait upon the Lord "we renew our strength."

EDITH L. MATHEWS.

Troy, Ohio.

Another victory for God and holiness in New Philadelphia, O. Yesterday (Sabbath) we received into our church four members, all adults and three of them heads of families, and following the sermon three seekers at the altar of prayer and two of them professed they were saved. We are in the spirit of revival in every service. God is blessing, more good ones are looking toward the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene and will soon be one with us. We are pushing our paper and literature.

REV. GEO. WARD.

Eddy, Tex.

Camp meeting here is moving along under the presence of the Holy Ghost; some seeking some finding, and some real conviction. This is the sixth year in this place; four years at Shilo camp, just four successions from here and two here. The Hines sisters from Waco, are leading the camp in song and they are doing it well. We close here Sunday night and begin Monday night at Shilo camp; run until Aug. 1st; begin at Sunset Aug. 2nd to 25th. In Jesus.

T. J. ADAMS.

Home address, Ozark, Ark.

Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

I am glad I can report victory for this, our new Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene. We have a very choice band of God's saints in this place. Intellectually, deeply spiritual and loyal to God and our Nazarene work. I have been their pastor for only a short time, but God has done great things in this short space of time. Seekers have been at the altar and some have really found the blessing. We are about to pitch a tent for the Lord. We pray Him for God for great victory through the name of Jesus.

THEODORE E. BEEBE.

Birchtree, Mo.

We organized a Sunday school here a few Sundays ago and the number of pupils is increasing each Sunday. We feel that the Lord is blessing us and that we will make a success. Brother Nicholson is very prompt to always be here ready to preach for us twice a month. Good crowds come out to hear him. God bless the Herald of Holiness; it does my soul good to read of what good works are going on.

AMANDA BICKnell.
Swaziland, South Africa.

Close by me is a motto, upon which are the words, "God is able." We have tested this by experience, and we try to give "God is Able." When we remember that just one year ago today, (June 14th,) our only shelter was a mud hut in a Native Kraal, and now in answer to prayer, and in the providence of God our Swaziland Queen gave us three acres of land, which gives us a good footing in Swaziland and plenty of liberty to give "God is precious souls the full gospel. Already a number have met God face to face, at Peniel, and many more have told us they like the way of salvation, and want to enter in now, but are hindered by those who rule over them. Do pray hopefully that the hindrances may be overcome, and that these precious souls may be saved.

The magistrate of our district pitched his tent near our grounds last week to collect tax. He was here three days, and as each chief came in with his company of men to pay their taxes we almost wondered where they all came from, yet all belong to our district. One of the most influential chiefs, and one who has a very large following gave us a special invitation to come and teach him and his people. We assured him we could not do much with people unless he would start and set them a good example, for they would be sure to know his advice, also that we first taught them about God and righteousness before we taught anything else. He said if we would come to him and his people would take the lead, as he desired to be a Christian.

So readers, this chief is in our own district, and only one full day's ride from Peniel on horse back and if we do not go to these hungry hearts with the true gospel the enemy will only be too glad to send them a substitute, but our staff of workers is small and we have all on our hands that we can manage at present. We cannot pray that the Lord and the harvest may send forth laborers into this field that is white, unto the harvest, and keep praying for us?

LULA SCHMIELENBACH.

Northwest District

Dr. E. F. Walker's visit to our district was greatly blessed to edification of the many who heard him.

Sister Martha Curry is visiting friends at Portland.

Dr. E. P. Ellyson spent Sunday, July 21, at the Portland camp. Preached for us in the morning. He will visit a number of our churches, and be at Spokane Camp over Sunday, August 8.

Evangelist Lewis and Matthews are with Brother and Sister Smith in The Dalles, Ore., in a battle for souls.

Mrs. E. G. Eaton is visiting a number of our churches in the interest of our work in India.

Evangelist Harry Elliott's slate is as follows: Portland, 1st Church, July 26-Aug. 7; View, Wash., Aug. 8; Spokane, July 29-Aug. 22; Seattle, Aug. 23; Monroe, Wash., Sept. 8; Monroe, Wash., Sept. 12-22; Condon, Ore., Oct. 3-20; Osborn (Walla Walla), Wash., Oct. 31-Nov. 10; Huntsville, Wash., Nov. 14-24.

The District Superintendent expects to visit all the classes during August and September. D. V.

Appointments for all General and District funds have been furnished the churches. Though they may seem high, the committees have made them at the lowest rate possible, based on the church membership reported. During last year it was not thought possible to raise the amounts, but those who undertook it were marvelously helped of the Lord and the churches greatly built up. With our increased membership has come increased financial burden. But we will gladly do our best. All have been taxed alike, and not one cent has been reckoned on. This year will not need to draw scriptural holliness over these lands. "Let us all come up to the help of the Lord."

De LANCE WALLACE, Dist. Supt.

Woosocket, R. I.

The God of battles still lives and is leading his people on to victory. We are in very glad that God has seen fit to send us among this people to labor. We are in love with our little folk.

Saturday night we held our first open air meeting. God blessed us and the people listened with attention; we then proceeded to our church, where we were crowned by God with victory and success. One soul who had once known God and been a preacher of the gospel sought for mercy. Next morning he returned, who had been with us on Friday night, and said he came on God for help. Thank God, before leaving he claimed victory through Jesus. All who read this piece kindly pray for our brother.

Sunday night the writer preached in the Swedish Congregational Church in Millville; our services as blessed as we listened to the songs of Zion sung both in Swedish and English all at once.

God helped us to tell the simple story of Jesus and His power to save and cleanse from all sin. Much conviction was on the people. The altar was filled and God gave us a clean sweep for Him. It is not for us to say how many really got through to God. We shall leave the results with Him, but this we do know—six or seven testified clean cut to what God had done for them. To God be all the glory!

Pray much for us and the work here. God is blessing and helping us in our daily calls from house to house. We meet many that are hungry for Jesus and who need words of love and encouragement.

Our Tennessee campaign closed out with glorious victory. The last day at Pelham was wonderfully blessed of God. There are many hungry hearts in that country. Calls come to us during the last week from five different places within a radius of twenty miles asking for meetings. WouId we have been glad to have spent the entire summer in those mountains, but for previous engagements.

I came by home for two days, then opened here on Friday night. The break came last night when three prayed through to victory. At 11 o'clock the people were scattered with prayer meeting expecting victory. The next morning he claimed victory through Jesus. All who read this piece kindly pray for our brother.

Momona, Calif.

Sunday, July 21, was our second in Momona. It was a blessed day with good attendance, some seekers and the manifest presence of God. In the evening we organized a Young People’s Society. We have some fire baptized young people in this church from which we expect a great deal. The people are much encouraged and a sweet spirit of unity prevails in our midst. At our last board meeting it was decided to sell our present church property and to build in a better location as soon as possible. We are expecting a year of great victory.

Haldor and Bertha Lilleness.

Brazza, Cape Verde Islands

Brother John J. Dias reports another month of victory. Souls are being saved, and the saints are being built up in their most holy faith. He has held meetings in a place called Cora Rodella. Had large crowds and some results; is holding three services on Sunday, two in our chapel, and one in another location, and two services during the week; the outlook is good for a plentiful harvest of souls. He earnestly requests the constant prayers of the church for the work, and for himself especially as he is working among the hardest people in the universe, namely, the Romans.

Sioux City, Ia.
The battle which has been on for the past ten days here against the powers of darkness is still raging under Bro. St. Clair; souls are coming through. The crowds are increasing and better order is in the ground than at any time last year. The prejudice which some had against the evangelist and church seemed to have largely disappeared. By the time we have another camp or two and the church is two years older people will begin to see we are not such wild folks after all, but love their Lord.

A. MEMBER.

Olivet, Georgetown, Ill.

Our District Camp is running at high tide. The attendance is splendid. The District is well represented. The writer had the good pleasure of receiving forty-five into church membership Wednesday night, another one in the week before. Winos organized them into what is to be known as the University Church. They are a live church. Seekers are coming to the altar at almost every altar call and “The end is not yet, Praise the Lord.”

I. G. MARTIN.

Lompoc, Calif.

Hallelujah! Just moved here, to serve the Nazarene Church. God has some grace-refined and fire-baptized people at Lompoc. The battle which has been on for the past month has been one of glorious victories. Four seekers, one happy finder, and large crowds. The tide ran high and the saints rejoiced uproariously. Our hearts are encouraged, faith up and flags flying. Beholding the King in His beauty. Bread is given and water is sure. Glory to God! W. C. Prazier.

Olivet, Georgetown, Ill.

On Tuesday, July 26, during the Chicago District Camp Meeting, a new Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene was organized at Olivet, Georgetown, Ill., with a membership of fifty-three with three of glory. A church board missionary committee and S. S. Superintendent were elected, and Rev. H. S. Heater appointed pastor until the District Assembly. The blessing of God is upon the camp meeting and “the end is not yet, Praise the Lord.”

Ponca City, Okla.
The last few weeks have been the best our church has had for months. Three or four have been seeking nearly every Sunday, and those who got through are staying true. Four were blessed last Sunday. Among them was the ex-Baptist preacher who was recently reclaimed here. He was gloriously sanctified, and shouted with the shouters of our crowd. He will now start out preaching holiness.

R. F. Kistler.

We do appreciate your paper so much and think it a very deeply spiritual paper and getting better all the time. My wife and I are in a battle here for the Lord. This is a very hard town but God is talking to hearts. Bless His Name.

Our church building is rapidly progressing toward completion. We expect to dedicate early in September. We have money to meet all the payments excepting the last one, and we would like to raise one thousand dollars—leaving a small amount on mortgage.

W. H. Raymond, Pastor.

Monhegan, Maine.

We closed at Farnouth, N. S. on the 7th of July. God was with us in love and power; a few were lifted from sin and came through rejoicing, praying for the Lord for their new found joy. Amen. May the good work go on in Farnouth and the few true saints there be encouraged.

E. Dearn.

Grand Saline, Tex.

Dear Herald of Holiness and Family: J. A. Collier and wife and the writer and family are in a glorious revival with the Nazarenes at this place. Some are praying through at the eleven o’clock hour at night in their homes. To God be all the glory.

This camp has been a season of great joy. Said to have been the greatest in the history of the District. It has simply been glorious; many souls reclaimed, saved and sanctified, and many remarkable cases of bodily healing. The last week has been a time of continued, steady victory. On home missionary day child day addresses from missionaries from India, Japan and China. The last day was a time of great victory.

Camp meeting closed last night. This has been a good meeting. A large number of pastors and evangelists with the local pastors. Brother and Sister Cagle, together with the local singers, assisted by some from abroad, did excellent work. Over forty professions were made, and several are to join our church.

The closing day of the camp was one of victory. The University service was held in the auditorium of the administration building in the afternoon, at which $46,000 was raised for the Illinois Holiness University.

Times Change.

In a small Kentucky village there occurred in the negro Baptist church a series of fights which greatly disgusted some of the congregation. One morning the niece of one of the members said: “Aunt Jane, is you gwine to de church to­morrow?”

“Auntie, silly. I ain’t a-gwine,” replied Aunt Jane. “I’s gittin’ fearin’ an’ ashamed to go to dat church, an’ ‘blieve I’ll jine in wid de Methodiscs. Dar was a time when a body’d come home fun de Baptis’ church an’ folkes’d ax, ‘Dyer have any preachin’?—who praught? But now day axes, ‘Dyer have any fightin’?—Who fit?’”—American issue.

This lesson gives us a perfect illustration of what Christ would be today to the world and individual men. We would co-operate with Him. Remember, Christ is the central figure. If we were to have this lesson with the described conditions, with Christ and His Holy Spirit, how the picture and the result. This gives us what the world, society and individual men, would do without Christ.

We have a vivid illustration of this in certain localities, and in the case of individual men. There are now and then men who are oppositions of Christ as a personal Saviour, who have not been modified or changed by the influence of His Spirit and teachings among men. And there are localities where the people are low and vile, wanting every trace of the uplifting, refining and even humanitarian influence, all of which is the effect produced by the Gospel, and thus the Son of God.

Though we may not fully appreciate and take in the truth, it is not an assumption, but a fully demonstrated fact to millions today. The facts we have here in this lesson, in the wild, tempest tossed sea, with its boiload of helpless humanity, and in this case of this demoniac, all of which Jesus left out, is the fitting picture of the world about us, and the condition of individual men. Were the world deprived of Jesus, His Gospel and the benignant influence of His Spirit, we have hardly a conception of what the moral condition of things would be.

Some who may study this lesson cannot appreciate what Jesus, the eternal Son of God, is to the locality in which they themselves live and are. He is to the people they know, even tho they have not received Jesus as their personal Saviour. And it is a strange thing, that so far this desirable condition of things for society and individual man, is not by the many traced to its true source, and God receive the glory of the gift of His Son Jesus Christ. They do not recognize God in Christ back of it all.

We were taught even when there was more unrest in the civilized world, discontent, lack of confidence and a spirit of upheaval, society, all growing out of selfishness, greed and gratification. The picture of the Spirit of Jesus? But as Jesus spoke the word, and the angry sea shrank back and became peaceful, in His presence, so today the words of Jesus, if received, would prove a panacea for all the ills of our civic life. Then all this tumult and strife between labor and capital would cease as suddenly as the sea obeyed His voice.

The case of this individual man, so men individually everywhere, hearing His voice, would be liberated from the demoniacal influence of sin which is wrecking their lives and destroying their manhood. It would do it at once, and men would sit down and think right, the mind that was in Christ. Then "the wilderness, and the solitary place would be glad for them, and the desert rejoice, and blossom as the rose."

Let us not dismiss this thought too readily. If there is ever to be a millennium in the world, it must be the millennium that will be. How easily and soon it might come if men would receive Jesus, take His words into their heart. All the unrest, content, strikes, disputings between labor and capital with many other ills would cease today. The saloon and the brothel, gambling hells and dens of vice, would be no more.
