FOREWORD

The work of personal evangelism is a very vital phase of the church program. Its practice began when Andrew went to his brother Simon and invited him to "come to Jesus." It has persisted throughout the history of the Christian Church. It has no less important a place today. Indeed, it is more essential now than ever to the successful promotion of the kingdom of God in the earth. The conditions under which we live make personal contact with men absolutely necessary to permanently attach them to the church. This phase of evangelism has not received large emphasis in the church until recent date. The growing interest in this part of the work is one of the most encouraging omens for the days that are ahead.

In the preparation of this little volume Evangelist Jarrette Aycock has rendered the church a great service. It is to be hoped that it will be widely circulated, carefully studied, and put into practice. The section which deals with "Excuses" should prove to be especially helpful. The tendency of the people to offer excuses that are both illogical and unreasonable is almost universal. If the fallibility of these excuses can be pointed out successfully, numbers of souls who would otherwise be lost may be won to Christ.

Whenever a man undertakes to tell others how to accomplish a task, it is expected that he shall prove the worth of his counsel in his own efforts. This Dr. Aycock has done. He has been a very successful soul winner for several years. The fruits of his ministry abide in every quarter. The fact that he has given this book to the public should recommend its use. I do not hesitate to give it my hearty endorsement and wish for it a large circulation.

01 -- THE SOUL-WINNER'S EQUIPMENT

The Greatest Work In The World

The greatest work in the world is winning souls to Jesus. An old general Of the Civil War was once heard to pray, "Lord, stop this cruel war, that we may get back to winning souls to Jesus, for it is the only thing that is worth while."

We cannot all preach, we cannot all sing, we cannot all be leaders in the Church of God. These tasks require talents, gifts, and ability. But we can all be soul winners. This is not accomplished by "might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." While it is not necessary to be especially talented or gifted to be a soul winner, there are, however, certain qualifications to which one may attain, that, while they are very simple, are quite essential in winning men to Christ.

A Goal

If we would accomplish anything worthwhile we must have a goal toward which to work. This is especially true in soul winning. We are not going forth to win men to the church; that is incidental. Neither are we merely trying to reform them; our goal must be to win them to Christ." We may win them to the church without reforming them; we may reform them without saving them; but when we have won them to Christ, they will be both reformed and won for the church.

If our goal is to win men to Christ, then as we deal with them we must present Christ to them. All the promises' for salvation hinge upon Jesus. "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life." And again, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

An old fisherman said there were three rules which must be observed in catching trout: first, stay out of sight; second, stay farther out of sight; third, stay still farther out of sight. If we would be real fishers of men we must stay out of sight and show them our Lord.

Equipment For Soul-Winning

We Must Know Christ

Knowing Him, not theoretically, but experimentally -- know personally that He saves us. A personal testimony supported by a clean life and the Word of the Lord is an effective weapon in personal work. Especially is this true when dealing with an individual who is being defeated by some of the very things which Christ has conquered in our lives. Sinners may doubt our theory and withstand our arguments. But when we can truthfully say, "I know, for Jesus did that very thing for me, and He can do the same for you such a statement is better than all the arguments in the world.

A Consecrated Life

This is very necessary. Nothing short of a consecration of our all, be it ever so little, can properly equip us for this great work. In the miracle of the feeding of the multitude, when Andrew told Jesus of the lad with five barley loaves and two small fishes, Jesus said, "Bring them to me." The lad gave his all and Jesus accepted it. But with that all Jesus fed the five thousand. If we would be efficient soul winners, we must bring our all to Jesus. Moses felt his weakness, but he gave his all, and what he lacked God supplied. If we will fully surrender our all to Him, He will supply our every need.

We Must Be Filled With The Spirit

The baptism with the Holy Spirit, which both cleanses from all sin and empowers for service, comes as a result of complete consecration and faith. We must not stop with this baptism, but we must so live and walk with Him that we may have His continual and special anointing upon our life and work. We must fully realize it is "not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." The real secret of personal work is that, to be successful fishers of men, we must be filled with the Spirit.

We Must Realize Men Are Lost

Learn to look upon men, not just as so many human beings, but as souls for whom Christ died. A big businessman in Chicago, on being passed by a streetcar crowded with people, said, "There goes a carload of nickels." But the man with him thought, not of the money they represented, but of the fact that each soul in that car was more valuable than all the world, and unless they knew Christ as their personal Saviour they were lost. We must recognize that no amount of morality will redeem men. If they know not Christ they are lost.

A Passion For Souls

If we would win men we must love them and have a burning desire within our hearts to see them come to a saving knowledge of Christ. All new converts, to some degree, have a passion for souls. It was true of Andrew, for, "He first findeth his own brother Simon... and... brought him to Jesus." If a new convert will cultivate this passion it will remain, but many do not and they become indifferent to the value of the souls of men.

Perseverance

As soul winners we must strike the word discouragement from our vocabulary. We must adhere to the old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." We may have to make many efforts to win the one in whom we are interested, and we may have to resort to more than one method to reach him. It may take years to accomplish this task, but rest assured, any soul you may win is worth all the effort and time it may take to do it.

A Knowledge Of The Bible

No one can proceed far in the vocation of soul winning without a working knowledge of the Bible. There are at least four things which we must know about the Bible if we would succeed in this great work.

First, we should be able to show men from the Scriptures that they have need of Christ.

Second, we should be able to show them from the Bible that Christ can meet their need.

Third, we should be able to point out to them from the Scriptures how to make Christ their personal Saviour.

Fourth, we should be able to show them from the Bible a way out of the difficulties and problems which they apparently think prevent them from giving their hearts to God.

Prayer

Prayer is indispensable in the winning of souls. It must be constantly on our minds and hearts as we deal with the individual. Pray for God to guide you to the right person. Pray that He will give you the right message. Pray that He will empower the message as you give it. Pray for the right word or Scripture verse to give in answer to any question. Pray that He will do that which is impossible for you to do.

A Workshop

Remember that any place is a workshop for the winning of souls. Christ won them On the highway, in the synagogue, in the home, and on the streets. Soul winners today who are alert will find some of their greatest opportunities on trains, in depots, on streetcars, in business houses -- in fact, any place where men work, travel, or play is a good place to win souls for Jesus.

Personal Evangelism And Revivals

Personal evangelism is not a substitute for but rather it is a supplement to the revival. In fact, it is one of the three great factors which make a genuine revival of religion; that is, prayer, personal work, and preaching. The lack of either is a tremendous loss in any evangelistic campaign.

Genuine personal evangelism is neither an individual nor an organized effort to enlist people merely for the church; it is not a drive to get members. But it is an effort on the part of the person or group to stir up an interest in the hearts of the unchurched masses with a view of winning them to Christ.

Personal evangelism was endorsed by the Master, practiced by the disciples, and given as a blanket commission to the Church of Christ. To this day that commission has not been revoked.

Personal Evangelism Is Scriptural

The Bible endorses personal evangelism. It is set forth by direct statement, by implication, and by example.

The world's wisest man said, "He that winneth souls is wise" (Prov. 11:30). Daniel, hero of the lions' den, said, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever" (Dan. 12:3). The Apostle James said, "Let him know, that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins" (Jas. 5:20).

Personal evangelism is implied in the parable of the great supper (Luke 14:23), when the Master said, "Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." The words of Jesus in His last message to His disciples, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8), are just as applicable to personal evangelism as they are to mass evangelism. Also in the sending out of the seventy (Luke 10:1-12) we have a very strong implication of personal evangelism.

David was brought back to God through the personal evangelism of Nathan, the prophet (II Sam. 12:1-7).

Naaman the Syrian was started on his road to God by a little slave girl, who though far from home was ready to witness for her Lord (II Kings 5).

If the words of Jesus be included there are seven instances of personal work in verses 35 to 48 of the first chapter of John. Other instances are to be found in Matt. 8:16; 15:30; and Mark 6:55-56.

As for the Master, there are fourteen different instances of His personal work recorded in the four Gospels. By far the majority of those in the New Testament who were prominent enough to be named or described were won, not by pulpit oratory, but by the personal evangelism of Christ or His followers.

"Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men" (Matt. 4:19).

New Testament Examples

This personal method of bringing men to Christ is not only sanctioned by the Scriptures, but it is there we have our greatest examples and illustrations.

Four different types of personal evangelism, which may be used outside the church or revival, are suggested in the first chapter of John's Gospel, verses 35 to 51. These are:

(1) Employer and Employee

In verses 35 and 36 we have what might be classified as personal work among employees, when John the Baptist pointed the two disciples who worked under him, or for him, to the Lamb of God. But while this thought is only suggested here, we know of not a few instances where the Christian employer has won his employees to Jesus.

(2) In the Home

In verse 41 we see Andrew bringing his own brother Simon to Jesus. This is personal evangelism in the domestic life, in the home, among one's own loved ones. How Andrew went about this we do not know, but if we would test his success ask the three thousand who were later converted under the burning message of Simon on the Day of Pentecost.

(3) Among Friends

The winning of Philip is recorded in verses 43 to 44. The latter verse would indicate that he might have been a friend of Andrew and Simon, of whom they had told Jesus. The work among friends is perhaps life's greatest field for personal evangelism.

The "Win My Chum" campaigns, about which so much has been written, were primarily planned and started for the winning of friends to Jesus.

If our lives are right, no one can influence our personal friends like ourselves. Go after them for the Master. Find a way to bring them under the influence of the gospel.

"I'm bringing a friend to church tomorrow night, and I want you to pray that he will be saved," said a young man to the evangelist at the close of an evening service, and before the revival closed his friend had found the Lord. That is personal evangelism among friends.

(4) Among Business Associates

From verse 45 to the close of the chapter we have the story of Nathanael. Here, someone has suggested, is personal evangelism among business associates; for Philip probably knew him in a business way, and as soon as he was converted he looked up his friend Nathanael. Be that as it may, soul winning in the realm of business is neither unknown nor impracticable. Many a big businessman, upon finding his Saviour, has gone to his associate and given him a tip on the world's greatest transaction -- Christ paying off the mortgage of sin on the souls Of men.

You men of business, let me appeal to you. Take your Bible, which contains the world's greatest examples of salesmanship, and the record of the world's greatest transaction, and go to that business acquaintance and tell him of that One who came to lift the mortgage, pay the debt, free the slave, endow the soul, and enrich the life. Others have won their associates to Christ. So can you.

A Definite Purpose

It is also worthy of note that in the case of Andrew, verse 41; Jesus, verse 43; and Philip, verse 45, we have the word "findeth," indicating that in each instance they entered upon their quest with a purpose. It was not accidental, it did not happen so; they were looking for souls, and they found them.

Among Strangers

In Acts 8:26-40, we have the story of Philip and the Ethiopian. This is an example of work among strangers. Here was a man of high authority, whom Philip had never seen, yet with tact he took advantage of his opportunity and won him to Christ. This type of personal evangelism has been repeated by thousands of earnest ambassadors for Christ: on trains, passenger liners, streetcars, buses, in the parks and on the street corners, all around the world.

"Say, boy, don't you go to school?" said a husky lad to a strange little boy sitting on the steps of a shabby home. "No, I'm crippled and can't walk," said the boy. "Get on my back, I'll carry you," said the first boy as he lifted the unfortunate chap from the steps. And so he did day after day. The name of the boy who played the horse is unknown, but the crippled boy who rode was Robert Hall, one of the world's great preachers.

Teamwork

There is a wonderful example in Mark 2:1-12 of co-operative, yet personal evangelism, when four men found the man who was unable to walk and brought him to Jesus. One must have become interested in him first, then solicited the help of his friends, and together they placed him at the feet of the Master.

All about us today there are palsied souls that by co-operative faith and work we may bring to the feet of Jesus and share their joy as they hear Him say those same words, "Thy sins be forgiven thee."

From House to House

In Acts 2:46 and 5:42 we have examples of house-to-house visitation, indicating that they went into the homes of the people telling them this wonderful story of the resurrected Christ and of the advent of the Holy Spirit. There are many homes that can be reached in this way which otherwise will never be reached.

Some of the modern cults realize the value of this method and use it continually for the building up of their work. We have the true gospel and the greatest story ever told. Let us go forth into the homes of the people as in apostolic times and preach and teach Jesus Christ. Many who do this make an approach through having a good book or Bible to sell, or some pamphlets or tracts to give away. This often opens the way for them to read and pray in the home and point sin-sick souls to Jesus.

Paul said, "To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some" (I Cor. 9:22).

The Scope Of Personal Evangelism

Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." This is not a special commission to a chosen few to seek the endorsement of the church, procure a license, be ordained, and enter the pulpit as professional ministers; but it is a general commission, given to every regenerated child of God -- a commission to tell the old, old story of Jesus and His love,

Sermons, churches, pulpits, revivals, and altars, in modern times, are confined to places and things; but the commission for personal evangelism goes beyond the church, beyond the pulpit, and beyond the public altar, into the streets and lanes, into homes and business houses. You are not confined to things, you are not limited to places; the "world is your parish;" Go ye!

Where shall we start this work for Christ? Wherever we happen to be. Whenever we are brought in contact with lost men. Many of the world's greatest Christians have been won beyond the pale of the church, and apart from the public service.

Keep on the Lookout

The Master was on the lookout for souls. He saw Zacchaeus in the sycamore tree, the impotent man by the pool, the woman by the well, Matthew at the receipt of custom, and the blind man by the wayside. He did not wait for the crowd to gather before putting forth His best efforts, but preached His great message on the "Water of Life" to the lone woman on the well curb of Samaria, and His great sermon on "The New Birth" to one man, Nicodemus. If you would be a soul winner, keep on the lookout. Do not wait for opportunity to knock at your door: keep your door open.

On the Train

A friend of the author whose heart had just been greatly stirred by a message on soul winning was making a three-day trip by train, and determined he would be watchful. He later said that three opportunities came in which he made successful contacts with men with reference to their souls' salvation. He kept his door open.

Hitchhikers

A certain man often picks up hitchhikers that he may tell them of Jesus and, though it is considered dangerous to pick up men along the highway, he says if they have any evil intention they never show it after he begins talking to them of salvation.

Look Them Up

When the author was a young Christian he used to go on Saturday afternoons to those streets of the city where men who were "down and out" congregated. When one would ask for food he would take him to a restaurant, buy him a meal, and then talk to him of Jesus.

Eating Dinner

A man was invited by three unsaved businessmen to take dinner with them in a downtown cafe. Instead of ordering a big meal he ordered very little, so that he might get through first and talk to them of Jesus. This interview was the means of leading all three to Christ. Later he learned that he was invited on a wager made by one of the men that he would talk to them of salvation. Suppose he had failed?

Winning a Neighbor

Invite that neighbor to go with you to church. Tell him of the interesting message he will hear, of the good singing, and of other things which you think might attract him. Then pray that God will unctionize the sermon and use the songs to stir his heart. This is personal evangelism.

Let's Go to Church

"Old man, you look lonely," said a soul winner to a young fellow standing near the entrance to a cheap lodging house. "I'm just going into the corner restaurant to get something to eat; come and go along." As they ate, he talked to the stranger, not of salvation, but of things in general, learning he was out of work and away from home.

When the meal was over he was given the address of a revival being conducted in a hall downtown. The Christian friend did not tell that it was a revival, but just said, "Meet me at this address at seven-thirty tonight; it may be I can help you." At seven thirty the young man walked into the hall, took his friend's hand, and as the tears trickled down his face he said, "I've been wondering all afternoon what made you speak to me on the street. I might have known it was Jesus."

I might have known it was Jesus
Who called in the busy mart,
Who sent you with words of comfort
To cheer my broken heart.

I might have known it was Jesus
Who, seeking to save my soul,
Came pleading in love and mercy,
To cleanse and make me whole.

Making The Approach

The battle is often won or lost in the approach; therefore we cannot be too careful as to the manner in which we first speak to men about their souls. It is also a fact that the approach in personal evangelism outside the church and public services requires much thought, care, and tact.

Bible Examples of Approach

Jesus opened the conversation with the woman of Samaria by asking for a drink of water, which she had come to draw. He approached the lame man at the Pool of Bethesda with what at first would appear to be a foolish question, "Wilt thou be made whole?" But in both instances you will notice that He spoke on a plane in which they were interested.

Stephen

The opening sentence of Stephen's message, "Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken," as recorded in Acts 7:2, was so kind, so gripping, so appealing, and yet so disarming, that for the time his enemies seemed to forget their anger and the purpose for which they had seized him. This approach gave him an opportunity to deliver his message. Had he approached them improperly they would have killed him at once.

Paul

Notice the tact Paul always used in his approach. Read the opening sentences of his talk on Mars' Hill (Acts 17:22-28); and before the multitude (Acts 22:1-3); also his defense before Felix (Acts 24:10-11); and his plea before King Agrippa (Acts 26:2-3). In each case his manner of approach won time for him to give his message.

Philip

Philip, in approaching the Ethiopian, won his way by offering his services. "Understandest thou what thou readest?" he asked (Acts 8:30). It was just another way of saying, "Stranger, can I be of service to you?" The man accepted his courteous offer, thus giving Philip an opportunity to expound the Scripture and to point the way to Jesus.

Many a wise soul winner has helped a neighbor fix a tire, given him a ride downtown, or showed him some act of kindness or service, as a means of approach before ever speaking about salvation.

Go Hunting

"John, do you like to hunt?" said Bill to a friend who probably never thought of God. "Sure," said John. "All right," said Bill, "Thursday is Thanksgiving, and we'll go and make a day of it." When they returned Thanksgiving evening Bill was all elated, and one of the first things he did was to find a Christian friend to tell him, "John was saved today." The friend was glad, but greatly surprised, and asked, "Bill, how did you do it? I did not know he was even interested." "That is why I went hunting," said Bill. "When we stopped to eat our lunch I began talking to him about his soul. Then we knelt in the sand and prayed, and God saved him." That was twenty years ago; John is still saved, has a lovely Christian family, and is an officer in the church.

No Infallible Rules

There are no infallible rules to follow in contacting a person about his soul. The proper approach in one instance might be wholly unfit and fail in the next. However, while no rule may be infallible, there are at least four which are never out of place. First, Be careful. Second, Be prayerful. Third, Be tactful. Fourth, Be courteous.

Some Suggestions on Approach

It is seldom wise, apart from a religious service, to approach one too bluntly about his soul by asking, "Are you a Christian?" "Are you saved?" etc. It is usually best to talk to him at first about things in general or something in which you think he will be interested, not so much about your work, but about his, and gradually bring the conversation around to the purpose of your visit.

If you desire to win some stranger in your town or community, it is usually not thought best to speak on the first approach about his soul. Make it a point to see him a number of times, first winning his respect and friendship.

On trains and in public places, however, there is no time for this waiting and cultivating. The soul winner must go immediately to the point before his man gets away. This type calls for much tact, much care, and much prayer.

Arguments are seldom worth while, but courtesy and kindness are never out of place. Be slow, very slow to speak against anything your prospects may profess to believe in or to which they may belong. You never know what family ties may bind to some belief, and a tirade against that "ism" or cult might completely drive them away. Therefore always tactfully avoid discussing anyone's belief but instead show him the better way.

Do not magnify the things one must give up to follow Christ, but rather magnify those things that will be received by following Him. Once a person's eyes are fixed on Jesus, he will gladly leave all for Him.

Sorrow in the Home

Sorrow no doubt originated through sin; but God, who maketh the wrath of man to praise Him, has taken advantage of sorrow and grief to make His entrance into many a heart. There is no more effective avenue to unsaved souls than showing a real, sincere love and kindness in the hour of trouble, sorrow, or bereavement. Watch for such opportunities in your community; then go in the strength of that One who was "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief."

Put Christ in Your Correspondence

Many business concerns spend thousands of dollars every year for correspondence, advertising what they have to sell. Not only 'do they send out circulars, but they write many individual or personal letters. That it pays is proved by the increase in this method of advertising, and souls may be approached and won to Jesus through the simple method of correspondence.

This too will require great tact, and considerable care. The letter should be neat, brief, friendly, and interspersed with quotations from the gracious promises of God, which may reveal a sincere interest on your part. It is also well to have some well chosen tracts on salvation to enclose with your letter. A neat, attractive post card containing a quotation of Scripture or an appropriate verse may open to you an opportunity to win a soul to Jesus.

Outside the Church

It is always worth while for the soul winner to carry some gospel tracts or copies of the Gospel of John with him in his work. These handed to a person may oftentimes easily open the door for further work.

"Are you interested in the Bible?" is a definite, yet inoffensive question to ask as an opening wedge and will generally bring an answer that will identify the person's standing or belief.

Don't think you must get an individual into the church services to win him to Christ. Jesus won men everywhere. One of the most outstanding cases of soul winning in which the writer ever engaged took place in a doorway at the noon hour on the crowded streets of a great city. There was no place to kneel but, with people jostling all about, our heads were bowed, prayer was offered, and Jesus came and brought peace to another struggling soul.

Christ is not confined to time, place, or position. He is seeking the lost and will accept them anywhere He can find them.

On Catalina Island (An illustration)

The author was on Catalina Island when he met one of America's great preachers whom it was his privilege to know personally. The preacher was on the sidewalk with a young man, whom he introduced, saying: "This is the world's champion long distance swimmer. He is in trouble and doesn't know Jesus. I am asking him up to my room to pray with him. Come and go along." It was a joy to go with them and to see this young man find the peace that only Jesus gives. Here was a great preacher on vacation. A hired boat at that time was waiting at the pier to take him out fishing, but his chief interest was in souls. He was a fisher of men.

Henry Ward Beecher said, "The longer I live, the more confidence I have in the sermons preached where one man is the minister and one man is the congregation."

Have A Definite Plan

A systematic plan is necessary to success in soul winning. Adopt a definite program and endeavor to follow it consistently and persistently. The following suggestions will help you"

- 1. Make a list of those whom you desire to win. Don't put it off; make it now.
- 2. Pray for them by name at least once every day.
- 3. In an inconspicuous way, let them know that their names are on your daffy prayer list.
- 4. Tactfully try to get them into the Sunday school, the church services, and the revival.
- 5. Give a copy of this list to your pastor and ask him his advice and help in reaching them.
- 6. Solicit the co-operation of a few tactful friends; give them a copy of your list and ask them to pray; occasionally ask them to meet with you for prayer.
- 7. Use the mails. Send those on your list an interesting gospel tract or story, a Scripture post card, or write a brief personal letter telling of your concern and interest.
- 8. When you have succeeded in winning anyone on your list, mark off the name and add another.

03 -- PERSONAL EVANGELISM IN THE CHURCH AND DURING THE REVIVAL

Hints To Ushers

- 1. Courtesy is the first and greatest law of ushering.
- 2. Smile! Even if it requires effort, it will help others. A pleasant reception often brings visitors back again.
- 3. Don't seat people during the singing of a special song.

4. Don't take strangers or unsaved young folk near the front; it embarrasses them; they may resent it and not return.

5. Don't place mothers with babies or small children too near the front, but put them where they may leave when necessary with the least disturbance.

6. Urge your, own people to take seats as far forward as possible, leaving the rear seats for the strangers and late-comers.

7. When there, are no people to usher, walk around and locate the vacant seats, so when people come you will know where to seat them.

8. Don't walk too fast or too far ahead of those you wish to follow you down the aisle.

9. Act as though you expect people to be seated where you direct; however, if they insist on sitting elsewhere, courteously submit to their wishes.

10. If called upon to pass out cards or envelopes,

(a) Always go to the front to begin, and work to the rear, facing the people.

(b) Hold the card or envelope in your 'hand and offer it to the people. Many may be given out this way that would never be called for otherwise.

A Dozen Don'ts For Soul-Winners

1. Don't argue.

2. Don't pull or use force.

3. Don't scathe or demean.

4. Don't be too urgent with strangers.

5. Don't criticize their church.

6. Don't speak to the same person each service.

7. Don't return to those who resent your coming.

8. Don't go to those with whom you may have had difficulty.

9. Don't embarrass a soul by keeping him standing when others are seated.

10. Don't, as a rule, deal with those of the opposite sex.
11. Don't put off until tomorrow that which you should do today,
12. Don't get discouraged because you do not see results.

A Dozen B's For Soul Winners

1. Be courteous.
2. Be patient.
3. Be compassionate.
4. Be sincere.
5. Be serious, never frivolous and chaffy.
6. Be careful of your breath. Nothing is so offensive as bad breath.
7. Be courageous! You are an ambassador for Christ.
8. Be true to those with whom you deal. Never tell them they are all right if they do not have a conscious knowledge of the presence of Christ.
9. Be in a spirit of prayer as you deal with each individual.
10. Be careful of the manner in which you deal with those of the opposite sex.
11. Be sure to answer all questions with Scripture if possible.
12. Be kind, even though you have failed.

Do not be discouraged. George Muller prayed for fifty years for two men before they were converted.

Some Things Worth Considering

Study the audience while the message is being delivered. Ofttimes you can pick out those whose hearts are touched.

Study the individual with whom you deal. No two people are alike. Each must be dealt with differently.

Notice when any Scripture or particular thought seems to grip a prospect and emphasize it with prayer and patience.

Never interrogate a person concerning his feelings, but speak only those things and ask those questions which will inspire faith in the Word of God and trust in Christ.

Be Careful about interrupting another worker who is dealing with a soul. The enemy takes advantage at every point.

Try to imagine yourself in the place of the individual approached. How would you like to be pulled to an altar? or, if there, have your hair tousled, your head pushed back, or have someone seize your hands and raise them heavenward?

Firmness, with gentleness and kindness, was the method of the Master. He has left us an example "that ye should follow his steps."

Some Things To Avoid

1. Avoid loud talk. It may embarrass the one with whom you are dealing and hinder other workers.

2. Avoid talking too much, Let your words sink in.

3. Avoid raising unnecessary issues and questions, such as -- "Will you be a missionary?" "Are you willing to preach?" etc.

4. Avoid speaking to a person while another is dealing with him.

5. Avoid trying to force a decision. Present the plan and give assurance of its merit and worth, but let the Spirit himself witness and give the light.

6. Avoid the "holier than thou" attitude. It is Christ who saves. Lift Him up.

7. Avoid anything that would make you or the person with whom you deal conspicuous.

8. Avoid as far as possible anything which would offend. We are to be as "harmless as doves."

9. Avoid quoting too many scriptures. Choose those making the point most clear and dwell on them.

10. Avoid looseness, lightness, frivolity, and indefiniteness.

Personal Work In Revivals

1. When possible, sit where you can command a good view of the audience and, when a call for show of hands is given, mark those who raise their hands for prayer. Be as inconspicuous as possible in making this observation.

2. The best time to start your personal work is as soon as the audience stands to sing the invitation song.

3. Make your approach as courteous as you can. Whenever possible, answer excuses with Scripture.

4. When dealing with those of your own sex, take them by the hand while talking to them.

5. If they show concern, yet hesitate about yielding, linger with them and gently urge them with earnest words and a slight pressure on the arm to yield then and there.

6. Study the persons with whom you are dealing, watch the effect of your words upon them, and if you notice the mention of mother, heaven, hell, or death affects them -- whatever it is, press that home to them.

7. If you see you can't win them, walk away and send some other worker to deal with them. Someone else may succeed where you fail.

8. Always urge immediate decision, "Now is the accepted time." Never exact a promise for tomorrow, only as a last resort. A soul is too valuable to risk any delay.

9. Emphasize that as they go forward they are not merely going to the altar, they are "coming to Jesus." The altar is a convenient place to pray and to meet Him.

10. If the evangelist is making a proposition or giving an exhortation from the platform, stop talking and give the individual an opportunity to hear what is said.

Working At The Altar

Dealing with the soul at the altar is one of the most important tasks, and at the same time the most difficult work of the soul winner. Many good fish on the line have been lost by unwise and overzealous work in trying to land them.

One of the first steps in efficient altar work is to find out what the individual is seeking: to be saved, reclaimed, sanctified -- or has he come because he is overconscientious and the enemy is trying to make him doubt?

Refrain from making any statement in your exhortation or prayer that would lead the individual to think the altar, praying out loud, looking up, raising his hands, or any attitude of the body is essential to finding God.

Drive home through exhortation and Scripture the truth that God is ready, anxious, and willing to meet the seeker's need the moment he meets the conditions laid down in God's Word. Impress upon him that it is the attitude of the heart, and not any outward act or physical position, that is essential.

Study the seeker with whom you deal. It is a well-known fact that there are some who, if you can get them to pray aloud, lift up their hands, or look up, will be broken up and thus find it easier to pray and believe God. It is also known that there are others so constituted that if you urge any of these things upon them too strongly they will be driven away. The efficient worker will study the temperament of each individual and will deal with him accordingly.

Do not ask anyone if he is willing to preach, or go to the mission field. Ofttimes the enemy takes advantage of this and uses it to keep a seeker from getting through to God, or causes him to think he is called when he is not. Either is disastrous. Let God raise these questions.

Helping Them Through

Some seekers need more instruction than others, but practically all need exhortation and encouragement with promises which particularly fit their need, It is best, however, at the beginning of the altar service to refrain from more than an earnest exhortation to pray, for pray they must, and it is never wise to rush seekers in their dealing with God.

After a season of prayer, when you feel the seeker fully realizes his condition and has prayed over it, give him those promises that meet his need, assuring him that the promises "are yea, and... Amen" to all who will believe.

If an individual faces restitution, do not send him away to make things right. Urge him to settle his salvation now; give assurance that God will take anyone on credit and help him to right any wrong.

If you notice that some Scripture or some song seems especially to move a seeker, use it and others of a similar nature.

If persons at the altar profess salvation, do not be hasty in passing judgment on them. Accept their testimony, give them some promise as a tonic for faith. Never interrogate them on points that would have a tendency to make them question their conversion. There may not be much outward manifestation, but remember salvation is a heart matter. Time will reveal the genuineness of any soul's conversion.

Salvation comes by faith. You cannot stress too greatly the importance of the repenting soul's taking God at His word and believing His promises.

Give Them Scripture On Which To Stand

When anyone professes conversion, do not ask him how he feels, but give him some of those plain, simple promises on which he may stand when the revival is over and the emotion may have subsided.

The following scriptures may be used for this purpose:

John 6:37: "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out."

Romans 10:13: "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Jeremiah 29:13: "And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart."

Romans 10:9, 10: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

I John 1:9: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The person fully conscious that he has met these scriptural conditions to the best of his ability will find these promises to be a wonderful foundation on which to stand in the hour of temptation and doubt. Every soul winner should commit these wonderful promises to memory, and every other promise which will help a soul to Christ. However, when possible, let the inquirer read the promises from a Bible.

How Can I Be Saved?

A personal worker may be asked "How can I be saved?" Proceed to instruct such an inquirer along the following lines:

"Come to Jesus just as you are. Come just now, just where you are. In your own way confess your sins to God. Ask Him, just as you would ask your mother, to forgive you of your sins. Tell Him sincerely that you are through with your old life of sin and that by His grace and help you renounce the devil and all his works; that you now take Him as your personal Saviour, that you trust Him to save you now, because He has said, 'Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out,' and you have come. Also, 'Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved,' and you have called. And, 'If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness,' and you have confessed yours.

"Lean hard upon that wonderful promise John 5:24, and remember it applies to you, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.' Do this with all of your heart. Trust fully in His promises to save and He will not fail you.

"Here is another promise on which you may stand, Romans 10:9, 10: 'That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.' Also 11omarl 8:16: 'The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.'"

How Can I Be Sanctified?

Frequently in dealing with Christians you will be asked, "How can I be sanctified?" Instructions may be given after this manner: "Are you conscious that you are a child of God, and as His child He is calling you to holiness? 'As obedient children... as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy' (1 Pet. 1:14, 15). In order that this experience of holiness may be yours the provision was made in the death of Christ; 'Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it,... that it should be holy and without blemish' (Eph. 5:25-27). As a child of God you are called to consecrate your all to Him; 'I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service' (Rom. 12:1). This consecration is the condition which we must fully meet in order to be sanctified. Consecration involves a complete dedication of our lives to God, a full and wholehearted devotement to His will, a separation of our talents, powers of soul, abilities, possessions, time, and all we may have to Him for sacrifice or service.

As we separate these to Him we are also separating them from selfish or worldly purposes. Consecration reaches its climax in a deep 'amen' in the heart to all the will of God for your life, somewhat like Jesus expressed: 'Not my will, but thine, be done.' You are the sacrifice. You place yourself and your all upon' the altar, and Christ is the Christian's altar. When your consecration is complete you may trust the merits of His blood and believe His promise to sanctify. Place your feet firmly on such promises as these: 'Whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy' (Exod. 29:37); 'The altar... sanctifieth the gift' (Matt. 23:19). 'The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin' (1 John 1:7); 'Purifying their hearts by faith' (Acts 15:9). Will you trust Him now to sanctify you? Do you believe He accepts your consecration and fully cleanses your heart? Fully trust Him 'who of God is made unto us... sanctification, and redemption' (I Cor. 1:30), Rest upon this promise: 'For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified. Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us' (Heb. 10:14-15). Enter into this. glorious experience by faith and live in the consciousness of His keeping power through faith."

The Witness Of The Spirit

Occasionally someone will ask, "How may I know I am saved?" Or a person seeking sanctification will inquire, "How may I know! am sanctified?" Inform the inquirer along the following lines:

"You must not make the mistake of seeking some manifestation or special witness.. When you have truly repented, your only hope of salvation is to 'believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved' (Acts 16:31). You have the promise that the act of believing gives you eternal life; 'He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life' (John 5:24). 'He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself... These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life' (1 John 5:10-13). When you 'believe on the Son of God'.you receive Jesus as your Saviour; 'But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God' (John 1:12). When you become a son of God, you are conscious of this relationship because 'you have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.'

You realize that God is your Father through redemption, and 'the Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the' children of God' (Rom. 8:16). You are aware of this witnessing presence in the fact that the burden of sin is gone, your guilt has been lifted, peace has come into your soul, and you are conscious of a new life, In this the Spirit and the Word agree, for through your accepting Jesus as Saviour the Spirit actually does within your heart what the Bible declares will happen as a result of believing Him.

"Your witness of the Spirit to entire sanctification is somewhat similar. When you have made an entire consecration of yourself to God you realize in your heart that you have met the conditions. This, however, is not the witness of the Spirit. You are then to fully trust the promise and appropriate the provision of His blood to sanctify and, as you do, faith receives the baptism with the Holy Spirit. This is the Spirit's witness to your entire sanctification. 'For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified. Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us' (Heb. 10:14, 15).

"You may be aware of this experience by a sense of cleanness, or through a consciousness of fullness. It is your privilege to fully trust God's Word; it is His to witness in His own way and time."

04 -- CONSERVING RESULTS AND HELPING THE YOUNG CONVERT

Conserving The Work

No successful farmer leaves his grain in the field to weather the winter's blast, but as soon as possible he gathers it into his barns. The successful soul winner must realize that the work is not finished when the soul accepts Christ as Saviour. It is only begun. The work thus accomplished must be conserved.

We have observed much personal effort put forth in revival campaigns to bring souls to Christ, and so little personal effort after they are won to conserve them.

It is a great thing to become interested in the salvation of a soul: to pray, to work, and to persistently hold on until you have won that soul for Christ. But it is just as important to follow up that convert and help to establish and develop him into an earnest worker for Christ. Will you pardon the author's personal experience here?

The great battle of my life was not the giving of my heart to God, but it was those first three weeks of struggle against old habits, old companions, and old places of amusement. I won in the conflict and was enabled to stand because those who had worked to win me to Christ continued to give me their companionship, friendship, and encouragement.

Never shall I forget one morning about two weeks after I was saved. I was having a fierce struggle when a worker called me on the phone and inquired how I was getting along. When I told him of the battle I was having, he said, "Just bow your head with me a moment." And I heard coming over the wires these words: "Jesus, bless Jarrette. He is having a fight, but we have confidence in him and believe he is going to make good. Lord, You have saved him; now keep him for Jesus' sake. Amen." Then with the words, "Old boy, I'm praying for you," he said, "Good-by." I hung up the receiver, struck the desk with my fist, and said, "If that fellow has interest and confidence enough in me to call me up and pray for me on the telephone, I'll die before I'll go back."

A mistake is often made in keeping young converts out of the church. Leave your wheat in the field and it is sure to spoil. Put it into" the elevator and you may save every grain. To preserve the work is the business of the church. The young convert who immediately joins the church doubles his chance of standing for God. "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved" (Acts 2:47).

There is no definite length of time which must elapse between the individual's conversion and his sanctification. The moment the first work is accomplished, he is a candidate for the second. It is not only possible but proper to lead the new Christian into the light of holiness and into the experience of full salvation as quickly as possible.

It is hardly advisable to try to get people sanctified while yet on their knees after conversion, but it is wise to tell them briefly of the next step and urge them to seek until they are filled with the Holy Spirit.

Do not stop with urging upon them the necessity of this experience, but show them that it is our great privilege, and point out the blessing which comes with being wholly yielded to God.

It is said Mr. Wesley urged his ministers to get their converts into the experience as soon after conversion as possible. Some of the most consecrated men and women have been saved in one service and sanctified in the next.

Twelve Ways To Help Converts

1. Make it a point to shake hands with the new converts and tell them you have confidence in them and believe they will make good. Nothing inspires confidence like knowing someone believes in you.

2. Call them occasionally on the phone, speak to them words of encouragement, tell them you are interested in their making good and that you are praying for them.

3. Remember their coming to Christ has meant the breaking of old associates and stepping out alone. Therefore put yourself out, if necessary, to be a friend and a companion to them. Do this at least until they have had a chance to make new friends of the right kind.

4. Have them out for a meal, in your home or at some restaurant.

(a) Talk to them about Jesus; show them what they may become if they will let Him have His way with them.

(b) Do not let the fact that you may be several years their senior hinder you in this work. Nothing so thrills or inspires a youth as having some older person take a personal and active interest in his living for God.

5. A Christian worker met a young convert on a downtown street just a few days after the latter had been converted. This older Christian gripped the young convert's hand, asked him how he was getting along, pulled him over against the building, bowed his head and whispered a prayer for him: and hurried on. But, oh, what an uplift that experience was to the young man!

6. Take them aside at the church and ask them how they are getting along, pray a short prayer with them, and where possible have them pray.

7. Ask them occasionally if they have any particular matter about which they would like to have you join them in prayer. This will make them feel that you look on them as real Christians and will both inspire and encourage them.

8. Suggest a promise to them. Quote it, show it to them in your Bible, or write it out for them. Some two weeks after a certain young man's conversion a man asked him one night how he was getting along. The reply was, "I am having an awful fight." He was advised to go home and read Jude 24, which he did, and on that wonderful promise, "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling," he won one of the greatest victories of his life.

9. Impress upon converts the necessity of reading the Bible. Urge them to memorize verses and whole chapters, and teach them that it is only as we study and know the Book that we can fully know the wonders of the Christ it portrays.

10. Emphasize the importance of reading good devotional books and magazines. If possible place copies of suitable books and papers in their hands, so they may become familiar with the proper kind of Christian literature.

11. Show them the value of uniting with the church. Church membership is owned and blessed of God and every Christian should have a church home. While the church membership will not save, it will help them to stand.

12. Urge upon them the necessity of being filled with the Spirit. Explain how He comes to cleanse the heart from carnal self and inbred sin and to fill with divine power for living and serving Him acceptably.

Nine Don'ts For Dealing With Converts

1. Don't try to call them' into the ministry. If God wants them, He will do the calling. Remember the church needs gifted laymen.

2. Don't interrogate them on their feelings, or talk too much of experience. A Christian experience is a life of faith, lived moment by moment.

3. Don't ask them too soon to lead a service. Timid young people may be driven away by this very thing.

4. Don't try to force your light on the dress question upon them. You may bungle the job. Let the Holy Spirit lead.

5. Don't sit in judgment upon them. When they have been saved as long as you have they may be far more spiritual.

6. Don't embarrass them when they are among their unsaved friends (with personal remarks and questions). Courtesy and consideration are twin graces of Christianity.

7. Don't preach maturity for purity. A sheep may be lean and still be clean. Give the lambs time to grow.

8. Don't criticize preachers and other Christians in the presence of converts.

9. Don't urge them to do things against which they have convictions.

How To Be A Bible Christian

1. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth:"

2. Make it a rule to read at least one chapter in your Bible each day.

3. Commit Scripture to memory, especially those verses and promises which will help you to win and encourage others.

4. Memorize also the location of the Scripture and mark your Bible or Testament so you can readily turn to it.

5. Form the habit of carrying a Testament with you. Many opportunities to read and to work will be gained in this way.

6. Take the Bible as your guide and order your life according to its teaching.

7. Receive all teaching, read all books, and interpret all Scripture in the light of the entire Bible.

8. The Bible teaches that the heart may be cleansed and empowered for service by the baptism with the Holy Ghost. Seek until you receive this blessing.

9. Make it the rule of your life to pray at least twice a day for divine protection and guidance. "I will therefore that men pray every where."

Ten B's For New Converts

1. Be prayerful. "Pray without ceasing." Spend much time alone with God.

2. Be studious. Study the Bible until you can skillfully wield the Sword of the Spirit.

3. Be careful with whom you associate and where you go. "Abstain from all appearance of evil."

4. Be humble. Any talent you may have was given you by the Lord. "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."

5. Be a witness. Tell others what Christ has done for you.

6. Be a soul winner. You were saved for service. There are others like you were, who need Jesus. Go win them.

7. Be courageous. This wonderful story of Jesus will bear telling anywhere.

8. Be sensible. God is an intelligent Being and always deals in an intelligent way.

9. Be considerate of others. You are not called to judge. You cannot see men's hearts or know the light they have.

10. Be a tither. It is God's plan for financing His work, and you never lose by being generous with Him. "God loveth a cheerful giver."

I Don't Believe In Sanctification

Hebrews 13:12 -- "Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate."

Ephesians 5:25-27 -- "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish."

I Thessalonians 4:3 -- "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication."

Romans 15:16 -- "That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost."

I Don't Believe Man Can Be Perfect

Matthew 5:48 -- "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Deuteronomy 18:13 -- "Thou shalt be perfect with the Lord thy God."

Genesis 17:1 -- "The Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect."

Colossians 1:28 -- "Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus."

Note -- This does not mean Adamic perfection, physical perfection, mental perfection, or divine perfection; but it does mean we can be wholly given over to Christ, complete in Him, fully saved, and filled with perfect love.

Can Man Be Perfect In God's Sight?

Genesis 6:9 -- "Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God."

Psalms 37:37 -- "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

I Think It Comes By Growth

Acts 26:18 -- "To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me."

Note -- That which comes by faith is instantaneous. We can grow in it, but never INTO it.
